Owners May Get Homes In New Test Of Tenants

OTTAWA (CP)—Final touches now are being put on a plan under which persons will be permitted to obtain possession of their homes if they can show they are suffering greater hardship than the present occupants, it was learned today.

The plan would include the establishment of organizations in the chief cities across Canada to hear individual cases of hardship caused by existing rental regulations. The present eviction regulations prevent a homeowner from obtaining possession of his home.

A source close to the government said the outcome of present deliberations likely would be the appointment of commissioners in several areas across the country to hear the cases.

He believed the municipal councils in major centres had been consulted either as to the plan or as to the choice of men to serve as commissioners.

The source said he did not know when the plan would be completed and put into operation.

Mayor Percy George said today he had heard nothing about any such plan, but commented that it sounded as if it might be a good idea. "I would like to have more details," he said.

In all probability a commissioner will be appointed for Vancouver Island with headquarters at Victoria to hear "hardship cases," if and when the plan goes into operation, J. D. Gunn, rentals appraiser for Vancouver Island, said today.

"They have been considering this move for some time," Mr. Gunn said. "Now with the matter more acute the plan would give deserving people a chance to go before a commissioner."

The rentals administrator at Ottawa always had the authority to exempt any lease, Mr. Gunn said, but referred to the difficulty of owners trying to get to Ottawa with their cases.

In some cases people bought homes three years ago and have not been able to get into them, he said. Such people who feel they are suffering greater hardship than the occupants of their homes can bring the case to a commissioner, when and if the plan goes into operation.

Record Salmon Delivery Here

Packers and fishermen handle salmon aboard the packer Co-operative 4, of the Kyquott Trollers' Co-operative Association, which brought to Victoria Friday 170,000 pounds of fish, said to be the biggest load to be delivered at a B.C. port. Standing in the rear is Capt. A. Ertesvaag, skipper of the vessel, while others in the group are Chris Sothrong, Olie Nicholas, Percy Gladstone, Mike Killey and Charles Ferguson.

Italy Reported Ready To Admit Jewish Refugees

ROME (Reuter)—Italy, with a Jewish population of 200,000, three-quarters of whom are estimated to have entered the country without visas, is prepared to accept any Jewish illegal immigrants to Palestine returned by Britain, it was learned in usually well-informed quarters here today.

The British government has intimated to the Italian authorities that it regards the return of clandestine immigrants to their port of embarkation as justified under international law.

LONDON (Reuter)—Jewish immigrants from the ship Exodus of 1947, now on board three British transports off the French port of Port de Bouc, are likely to be given at least another 48 hours to make up their minds to disembark on French soil before the ships sail for an unknown tropical destination.

This, it was learned from a reliable source today, is the result of Friday's cabinet meeting at which ministers are believed to have decided that those Jews who abide by their decision to land nowhere but Palestine will be deported to a distant tropical territory under British control.

Defends Dominica

Gen. Hector Trujillo (above), brother of President Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic, is ready to command the forces defending that republic if a reported invasion materializes. A rebel fleet, including two light warcraft and numbering 2,000 men, was reported poised off the eastern tip of Cuba for an invasion of the Dominican Republic "early in August," according to a report by the Miami Herald.

New Strip Joins Qualicum Falls, Cathedral Grove

Gift of 832 acres of scenic territory along the shores of Cameron Lake, thereby connecting MacMillan Park, which contains the famous Cathedral Grove, with Little Qualicum Falls Park has been made to the B.C. government by the E. and N. Railway Co., Premier John Hart announced today.

The gift territory, which carries approximately 10,000,000 feet of merchantable timber, starts at the mouth of the Cameron River where MacMillan Park now ends and skirts the southerly shore of Cameron Lake and the Island Highway to Little Qualicum Park, a distance of approximately six miles. The gift will make possible further development of the area including Cathedral Grove, Little Qualicum Falls and Cameron Lake, for tourist purposes.

The offer was received by the premier from J. E. McMullen, chairman of the B.C. sub-committee, department of natural resources of the E. & N. Railway.

The northern shore of Cameron Lake is made up chiefly of steep mountainside, rocky cliffs interspersed with inaccessible timber. The gift will mean the province and Vancouver Island in particular, will have perpetuated a fine, natural park—1,330 acres of woodlands, brooks, streams and lakes—including MacMillan Park, Little Qualicum Falls Park, and the new strip.

"It is indeed a most public spirited action that the officials of the E. & N. Railway Co. have taken," Premier Hart said, in announcing acceptance of the gift.

"I would like to take this opportunity on behalf of the people of this province to express to Mr. McMullen and his associates our deep sense of gratitude for making possible the establishment of so beautiful a park and the preservation in perpetuity of this scenic area."

In 1944, H. R. MacMillan, on behalf of his associates, gave to the B.C. government 332 acres of timberland to preserve Cathedral Grove. It was suggested at that time that to complete the ideal park it would be worthwhile to have preserved for public use a strip of land skirting the southerly shore of Cameron Lake connecting MacMillan Park with Little Qualicum Falls Park which had already been developed by the forestry department. The E. & N.'s gift now has made this possible.

At the present time, the Public Works Department is improving the road traversing Cameron Lake and through Cathedral Grove and this work is being done in close co-operation with the forestry department to ensure preservation of the trees in the park. Realignment of the road is being carried out with the minimum of timber felling.

Forestry department plans call for establishment of such picnic sites as will be useful to the public without destroying the natural beauty of the area.

There is good fishing both in Cameron Lake and in its streams. After the necessary surveys have been completed, the area will be turned over to the forestry department to enable its staff of experts to work out a well-rounded plan of development.

Probe Witness Says Money Spent To Entertain Young Roosevelt

WASHINGTON (AP)—John W. Meyer admitted to U.S. Senate investigators today that he spent $106 entertaining Elliott Roosevelt in a party of six at New York night clubs the day Roosevelt drafted a report recommending the government buy Howard Hughes' airplane.

Meyer, party-giving publicity man for Hughes, identified on the witness stand before the Senate war investigating committee an expense voucher he had turned in for entertaining Roosevelt Aug. 20, 1943.

Publicity Man John W. Meyer

Chairman Homer Ferguson (Rep., Mich.) said that was the same day Roosevelt, son of the late President, drew up his report of a trip to Culver City, Calif., to inspect Hughes' photo-reconnaissance plane.

The committee heard testimony Friday that Roosevelt's report upon previous unanimous rejection of the plane by air ops experts and resulted in the award of a $48,500,000 contract to Hughes for 100 planes.

Meyer denied he had talked to Roosevelt about the plane.

NOISY SESSION

The inquiry later broke up in a row over questions about selective service deferments for Meyer.

Tom H. Slack, counsel for Hughes, violently protested it was "impossible to get the truth" when Senator Harry Cain (Rep., Wash.) suddenly turned the questioning from cocktail parties and nylon stocking gifts to Meyer's wartime draft status, asking about what he termed Meyer's "six deferments" from selective service.

Meyer had little chance to answer questions as Slack and Senators Homer Ferguson (Rep., Mich.), Cain, and finally Owen Brewster (Rep., Me.) got into a wordy dispute about whether the Senate committee could allow all facts to be presented.

Ferguson rapped for order and then quickly announced a recess of the inquiry until Monday.

Ferguson told reporters that Meyer is being held under subpoena for all of next week, when both Elliott Roosevelt and Howard Hughes are scheduled to testify.

3 Charged Here With Deserting Ship In Germany

Henry W. Kelly, Kenneth O. Keefe, and Donald J. Stewart, three seamen, appeared in city police court here today charged with deserting their ship in Germany.

Charged together, Magistrate H. C. Hall set bail at $500 for each. They were remanded to Monday without plea. Alan Baker appeared for the Crown.

The seamen are charged under the Canada Shipping Act with leaving the British vessel, S.S. Seaboard Queen, registered in Canada, on June 2, at Holtenau, Kiel Canal, Germany.

They were arrested by warrant by Detectives Bill Richards and Alec Briggs on their ship, the Seaboard Queen, now moored at Esquimalt.

Dutch Welcome U.N. Decree To Halt War In Indonesia

BATAVIA, Java (AP)—Acting Governor Gen. Hubertus J. Van Mook welcomed today the United Nations offer to mediate the Indonesian conflict, but expressed doubt the Indonesian Republic could enforce the cease fire order of the United Nations Security Council.

In an interview the senior Dutch official in The Netherlands East Indies said: "We can stop hostilities, but I wonder whether the other side can. Unless their armed groups are disciplined or eliminated there is no chance of getting this country going again for a long time."

Van Mook said he had not received instructions from The Hague as yet to issue a cease fire order.

Republican circles in Batavia were disappointed because the council's demand did not specify that Dutch forces should give up their military gains.

Neutral observers expressed serious doubts whether the cease fire would be workable under such conditions.

Official Dutch quarters declined comment, referring reporters to The Hague.

(At The Hague the Dutch cabinet was called into extraordinary session today to consider the U.N. Security Council's demand that both sides cease fire in the Indonesian warfare. "The situation is under consideration," a qualified source said.)

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—The United Nations today moved swiftly to stop the conflict in Indonesia with unprecedented orders to The Netherlands and Indonesian governments to cease hostilities immediately.

Terse notes were dispatched to the two governments within a few hours after Friday night's far-reaching Security Council decision calling on them to stop fighting and settle their disputes by arbitration or other peaceful means.

Argument will be heard on the continuance of the injunction Aug. 12.

Mr. Martin stated in his application for an injunction, that he learned that Walters was cutting and removing timber from and in the Sahltam district which the former had purchased July 29, with the right to cut and remove the timber.

"I notified him that I owned the timber but he refused to cease cutting," Mr. Martin said in his affidavit.

G. Marshall Gordon represented Mr. Martin.

Mopping Up Carried Out In Java Say Dutch; Advance In Sumatra

BATAVIA, Java (AP)—The Dutch army announced that mopping up and consolidation were under way through Java today, while in Sumatra they claimed new gains in a drive southward on the Medan front.

These reports were contained in a communique issued just after news had reached that the Dutch colonial capital that the United Nations Security Council would ask both the Dutch and the Indonesian Republic to cease hostilities in progress since July 20.

The Republicans by their own admission were anticipating intensification of the Dutch push toward their capital of Jogjakarta in south central Java.

A broadcast from Jogjakarta said the Dutch had captured 10 Germans and three Japanese at Pematangsiantar, and four other Japanese in south Sumatra and west Java and had occupied Kabandjane, about 35 miles southwest of Medan in Sumatra.

Compulsory Loans

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Express said in a news story today that the British government is considering "forced loans to the state, to be taken from wages in the same way as income tax, as part of its plan to meet the threatened economic crisis."

The newspaper, published by Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook, said the crisis might force an emergency budget this autumn.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—The government of Generalissimo Rafael L. Tel Aviv Returning To Normal After Night, Day Of Violence

JERUSALEM (AP)—An unidentified Jew was found slain today on a roadside near Petah Tikva, east of Tel Aviv.

Authorities expressed belief he was one of two Jews reported abducted by English-speaking men in army uniforms south of Tel Aviv about two weeks ago.

The all-Jewish metropolis of Tel Aviv was just about back to normal today after a night and day of violence apparently touched off by discovery north of there Thursday of two British sergeants who had been hanged by Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground group.

Five Jews were killed and 16 hurt Thursday night and 33 others wounded Friday in Tel Aviv. Reliable sources said most of the casualties had resulted from the gunfire of British troops and police angered at the killing of the sergeants.

LONDON (Reuter)—Appeals to the Jewish community to crush terrorism in Palestine were made in some sections of the British press today.

The Daily Graphic wrote editorially: "All yesterday the world waited for a sign from the Holy Land."

"The only sign from Palestine was more terrorism."

"The temptation is to let feeling rule us. The opinions of the British public themselves Friday showed it. Chief reaction was a blind anger that two sons of Britain should be strung up to trees. There was talk of reprisals."

"But that is the language the terrorists themselves speak."

"The powers must look to the Jewish people in all countries to lend all possible aid to rout out the criminals who pretend to act for the cause of Jewry."

U.S. Citizen Held

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—American sources said today that Stephen Thuransky, a United States citizen who said he was an agent for the International Harvester Co., was arrested Friday night by armed Hungarian political police at Balassagyarmat, on the Czechoslovak border northeast of Budapest. The informant said the American legation had protested the arrest and was told by the political police that Thuransky had been arrested on "serious charges" of "undemocratic utterances."

Guard German Plant

BERLIN (AP)—Police, standing guard at a German factory in the United States sector of Berlin which was ordered closed because it was manufacturing war materials for a "foreign power," told correspondents today they had orders to prevent any of the plant's equipment from being removed by the Russians. The plant under guard was the Mariendorf unit of the Askania works, big scientific instrument industry.

Jews' Windows In Liverpool Smashed

LIVERPOOL (AP)—Tension mounted in Liverpool today as red-painted anti-Semitic signs appeared near the docks and Jewish shopkeepers' windows in several sections of the city were smashed. Windows of a synagogue also were broken Friday night.

The incidents apparently reflected resentment over the hanging of two British army sergeants by Jewish underground members in Palestine this week.

Police received an emergency call from a Jewish doctor who said he had been assaulted in a cafe. Squad cars cruised city streets, but no arrests were made, police said.

Rumors Mussolini Widow, Daughter Plan Marriages

FORIO D'ISCHIA, Italy (Reuter)—The Island of Ischia, set in the blue waters of the Bay of Naples, is alive with gossip about the possibility of a double wedding of members of the Mussolini family—the former dictator's 57-year-old widow, Rachele, and her 18-year-old daughter, Anna Maria.

Rumor has it that they will marry respectively a father, 59-year-old Vito Calise, and Vincenzo Calise, his 21-year-old son, who own a number of vineyards on this island.

The rumors are, however, not confirmed by the families concerned.

Romano Mussolini, the late Duce's third son, a sturdy 20-year-old youth with protruding jaw and wild dark eyes, denied the rumors of impending marriage when a reporter found him on the beach here, but he admitted there was a close friendship between the two families.

His mother, he explained, first met Calise last summer when his wife suffered a severe heart attack. She later died and Signora Mussolini helped the widower with the funeral arrangements.

One thing that has strengthened the rumors of an imminent wedding is the arrival here of Edda Ciano, Mussolini's elder daughter who married Italy's Fascist Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, and her seven-year-old son, Maurizio.

With her arrival, all that remains of the former dictator's family, except the eldest son, Vittorio, who is in Argentina, are reunited.

2-Pound Baby Loses His Fight For Life

BECKLEY, W.Va. (AP)—A two-pound baby boy, who had gasped his way back to life on a funeral parlor table only 12 hours before, died in a hospital incubator early today.

The tiny son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Warden was born Thursday, prematurely at six months, in a two-room home near Coal City and died shortly after midnight in the hospital.

Friday afternoon the infant had been given up for dead after nurses reported to doctors that he had ceased breathing.

Douglas Bryant, embalmer for the Rose Funeral Home, reported he began preparation of the body for burial a short time later and pressed upon the baby's chest.

The infant gasped and began to cry, Bryant said. The embalmer continued to apply chest pressure and packed hot cotton pads around the little body to restore blood circulation.

Taken to the hospital, the baby was placed in an incubator, but died today.

ST. GEORGES, Que. (CP)—Those 100 girls who came from Europe to this mill town south of Quebec City amid such a to-do two months ago today seem busy and happy, but mix little with the local populace.

Few have got out on dates with local boys. None is engaged; none married. And for the most part they display little interest in boy friends. This is a source of concern for authorities who regard them as potential charges rather than ordinary boarders or employees in the Dionne rayon spinning mills.

Pretty, blonde Anne Gaizutye, 22, said she has no boy friends because she has "no time."

Speaking near-perfect English—one of her six tongues—the Lithuanian girl, a former university chemistry student, said with a smile, "I have no time for boy friends. I like to stay home and read—I have so much to learn."

Among the remainder of the tile paralysis this year was reported today to Dr. R. B. Coulson, health officer. The patient, a small boy, is receiving treatment in the isolation hospital.

Canada Needs Immigrants Says Majority Of Voters

By CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Canadians are ready to put out the welcome mat for incoming citizens.

Much more than half the voters of Canada today feel there is a definite need for immigration. Only about three in 10 think there is no need.

Rank-and-file voters of all classes aggregate 51 per cent saying we need immigrants, and an additional 11 per cent in agreement if "they are the right type" or "have been properly selected."

In the latest Gallup Poll, the Institute asked an exact cross-section of the voting population in all parts of Canada:

"Would you say that Canada needs immigrants, or does not need immigrants?"

Need immigrants.....51%
Canada does not need them.....11%
Need "if right type" etc.....38%
Undecided.....0

Highest proportions supporting the need are found in British Columbia and the Prairies. Quebec and the Maritimes average about as many who deny the need as agree to the proposition.

WOMEN LESS FAVORABLE
Greater numbers of men agree than do women. Higher proportions of the business and white collar classes see the need than among the labor and farm groups.

Opinion on this issue cuts clear across political party lines, as a comparison by federal party support shows:

A point of interest in the results of many public opinion surveys is the question of how well the general public understands the topic on which the ordinary voters' viewpoint is polled.

An elementary indication of the extent of insight into the subject was obtained in this survey by asking the persons surveyed a previous question:

"Can you tell me, just in your own words, what an immigrant is?"

The question was repeated for the word "immigrant." An average of 61% were able to give a correct definition or description of both words, slightly more being correct about "immigrant."

As usual, those who were unable to give any definition were inclined to be undecided on the issue.

Of even greater interest is the evidence that those best informed on the subject are more convinced of the need of immigration:

DETROIT (AP)—A walkout of 39 workers in one department of the Hudson Motor Car Co. halted production Friday and made an estimated 9,000 employees idle.

A company spokesman said the strike was unauthorized and resulted from demands for pay rate increases in the department "contrary to an agreement made at the time Hudson workers were granted their recent wage increase."

Elliott Roosevelt Reversed Decision Of Plane Experts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols testified Friday that Elliott Roosevelt picked a Howard Hughes' plane as the best available for wartime photo-reconnaissance work after the Air Force high command turned it down in 1943.

Echols, wartime chief of the air corps material command, told the Senate war investigating committee that the son of the late President Roosevelt in effect reversed the decision of the air corps' best experts.

The general agreed that if the plane could do a claimed 485 miles an hour it then would have been the air corps' fastest plane of the type.

Chairman Ferguson commented that the committee has been unable to find any air corps records dealing with the experimental plane between July 1, 1942, and the end of June, 1943.

Echols said there probably were none because Hughes was conducting his own development.

After a tour of plane plants, Echols said Roosevelt returned to say "that of all of the planes he had seen, it was his conviction that the Hughes airplane, modified, would be the most suitable type."

The committee already has received testimony behind closed doors from John Meyer, publicity man for Hughes, that Elliott was one of the army officers and government officials whom he entertained in behalf of Hughes.

Echols testified that on Aug. 24, 1943, shortly before Roosevelt's return, Gen. Arnold had directed that no further action be taken to encourage Hughes in his effort to sell his plane to the army.

Hughes Defends Wartime Parties

Howard Hughes (centre, facing camera) holds his first press conference at Culver City, Calif., since the U.S. Congress started investigating his airplane contracts. Hughes told reporters his wartime entertainment was necessary in order to keep his companies "in a competitive position with other plane manufacturers." The Associated Press at Los Angeles reported a U.S. deputy marshal had called at Hughes' Beverly Hills apartment with a subpoena demanding his appearance in Washington before the Senate War Contracts Investigating Committee. Hughes was not there.

Qualicum Couple Back From Britain

QUALICUM BEACH—A three-month visit to Britain, during which they saw the Cheddar Caves in Somerset, the Doonee Valley, listened to a debate in the House of Commons and attended the American stage production of "Oleanna" in London, concluded for Mr. and Mrs. F. Morgan of Qualicum Beach, who returned home via Trans-Canada Air Lines.

They reported they found conditions generally better than they expected, and said they were amazed by the fact that the British spoke so highly of the Germans, "holding no grudge against them for the sufferings they had brought on the nation."

The German prisoners of war, many of them working on farms, had proved to be cheerful, industrious and clean and co-operative, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan said.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan visited Mr. Morgan's family in South Wales. Mr. Morgan, an employee of the B.C. Telephone Company for 27 years, was granted three-month leave of absence.

U.S. Opens Up Land On Alaska Highway

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interior Department Friday opened the land along the Alaska Highway to settlement—with reservations and a word of caution.

The department approved an order by the bureau of land management opening to public use 338 miles of the highway—the 202-mile main section from the Yukon boundary to the juncture with the Richardson Highway leading to Fairbanks and the 136-mile Gulkana cutoff toward the coast.

The bureau said initial settlements will be allowed only at the most favorable points, now being surveyed.

Canadian Cadets Touring England Thrilled By Visit

LONDON (CP)—Thirty-six Canadian air cadets arrived Friday night at a London airport to take their first look at England. They are here in exchange with a similar group of British air cadets now touring Canada.

Touching down in two special York transports before piling into buses to drive to Hendon airport, the lads were in gay spirits. They traveled to Halton, Cheshire, where they split into two parties, one to tour southern England and the other northern England, by motor coach.

The highlight of the tour will come when they will fly over German bombed cities to see the damage wrought by their "big brothers."

The visit brought an added thrill to 18-year-old Sgt. Ronald Bushnell of Vermilion, Alta., who at last will be able to meet his English girl friend, a "pen pal," whom he has known for 18 months through letters and photographs only. She is 16-year-old Marjory Tylor of Dagenham, Essex.

Defence Of Britain Medal To Be Minted

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Headquarters announced Friday that the Royal Canadian Mint will start manufacture of the Defence of Britain Medal as soon as dies are received from the United Kingdom. Striking of the medal already has started in Britain.

Servicemen who served six months in Britain before the end of hostilities will receive the medal. About 342,000 Canadians qualify.

The medal will bear on one side an uncrowned effigy of the King, while the reverse will show the imperial crown over an oak tree defended by a lion and lioness, with the inscription "1939-1945" and "The Defence Medal."

Headquarters also said the mint is working on various campaign stars and medals, but distribution will not start until sufficient numbers are available. These include the 1939-1945 Star, the France-Germany Star, the African Star, the War Medal and the Canadian Volunteer Service Medal.

UNITED STATES CURRENCY MUST BE TURNED INTO THE BANKS

Why? because U.S. dollars spent by tourists are needed to pay for the many imported goods and services essential to keep Canadian industry at a high level of production and employment.

To ensure that U.S. dollars are made available for this purpose, the Foreign Exchange Control regulations require that merchants, hotel-keepers, service stations, and all others turn in whatever United States currency they receive to their banks.

In his own interests as well as in those of Canada, it is the obligation of every Canadian to comply with the regulations which are necessary for the orderly and proper use of our foreign exchange resources.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONTROL REGULATIONS IN BRIEF

1. In no case is it legal for a Canadian resident to pay out U.S. currency to anyone in exchange for Canadian currency.
2. In no case is it legal for a Canadian resident to pay out U.S. currency in change to another Canadian resident even though the latter has tendered U.S. currency in payment for a purchase.
3. No Canadian resident is permitted to retain in his possession U.S. currency in excess of $10.00, but is required to turn in such funds to his bank for conversion into Canadian funds.
4. Merchants or others catering to the tourist trade may pay U.S. currency to non-resident tourists in change if U.S. currency is tendered for a purchase, and may retain in their possession a necessary amount of U.S. currency for this purpose.

THE CORRECT COURSE

BECAUSE IT SEEMED TO BRIGHTEN the prospect of a way out of an extremely explosive and dangerous international situation, all the peace-loving peoples of the world learned with relief that the Dutch government had accepted Washington's offer of "good offices" in respect of the "undeclared war" in Indonesia. At best, of course, this method of procedure could be nothing more than a temporary expedient—a formula to provide an opportunity for tempers to cool off. But now that the Security Council has invoked the authority with which it is clothed by the United Nations Charter, and ordered both The Netherlands and Indonesian governments to bring immediate end to hostilities, there will be new hope that the effect of its dictum will establish a precedent of high encouragement for future peaceful progress.

While the major nations occupying permanent seats on the Security Council seem to have made little progress toward agreement on the composition of an international "police force"—due to Russia's unreasonable demands—Articles 41 and 42 of Chapter VII of the Charter set forth all the pressures which may be applied to disturbers of the peace. These may include complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations. Also, if this combination of measures does not cure the intractability of the aggressor, the Security Council is authorized to take such action by air, sea, or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action, by the way, may include demonstrations, blockade, and other military operations by the forces of members of the United Nations.

Military operations by any member or group of members of the United Nations will not be wholly practical until the "police force" has been established on a mutually-agreeable basis—which means an organized force or forces with appropriate mobility. Nor should any more time be lost in setting up this essential establishment. However, if the commendable action taken by the Security Council this morning, apart from its immediate intent, has done nothing more, it has focussed new emphasis on the urgent need to comply with that specific provision of the San Francisco Charter which so clearly distinguishes the peace-enforcing machinery of this second effort from that of the old League of Nations. In any case, the Indonesian affair may yet teach the world a good deal.

ADVANCE BILLING

BECAUSE THE WORLD OF MAKE-believe produced in Hollywood and distributed throughout the moving picture theatres of the globe has become an integral part of Canadian life, advance billing on the Communist investigations planned in the film capital are of more than passing importance to the citizens of this country. No quarrel will be found with the decision of the United States authorities to probe the loyalty of men engaged in this industry—a particularly vital medium for propaganda purposes. It is conceivable that important figures in the business who harbor more than ordinary sympathies for an alien ideology might exercise their authority to color the celluloid output in an un-American way, should the occasion permit.

On the other hand, despite allegations that small bits of "red" propaganda have made their way into films, the general tone of the Hollywood product has given no weight to fears that future output might be slanted on a pro-Communist line. With few exceptions, the United States moving picture is light entertainment—often a fairy story with the Horatio Alger touch.

What is to be feared from the investigations is the possible emergence of a "red" bogey to be exploited in a way that would stifle genuine progressivism in any future film that might expose a social condition in need of remedy. That could be extremely detrimental and, in its own way, un-American or, at least, un-North American.

The Hollywood inquiry, however, will be conducted under the handicap of a general acceptance of the fact that activities there, no matter what their substance, will be things of hyperbole—things of fiction only remotely connected with reality.

SPENDING WISELY

THE ANNOUNCEMENT BY PREMIER John Hart Hart yesterday that the Old Age Pension in this province will be $40 a month, retroactive to last May, is further proof, if such were needed, that British Columbia intends to lead the rest of the provinces of the Dominion—regardless of their political complexion—in this form of welfare. The statutory pension, paid jointly by the Dominion and Province on a 75-25 basis, has been raised by agreement from $25 to $30. In addition to this, the Province will continue to pay the $10-per-month cost-of-living bonus.

The present announcement is the third important one to be directed toward the senior citizens of this province within the last few months. As the legislative session opened on February 12, it was revealed that the cost-of-living bonus would be increased from $5 to $10. This was followed in May by federal action to widen the basis of payments and permit more latitude in regard to outside income. The latest step brings the British Columbia plan closer to the $50 a month urged by the recent convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities held at Winnipeg. The effective age will continue to be set at 70 years.

There still remains, of course, the matter of the means test, whereby aged folk with more than a very small income are debarred from participation. In this regard, Mr. Hart said yesterday: "We shall continue our policy on behalf of old age pensions until some definite arrangement has been made whereby the means test is removed and the pension made payable to all."

In the meantime, the Old Age Pension is a form of redistribution of wealth rather than personal investment. Under the system of pensions now to come into effect, the taxpayers of this province will pay each year an estimated $4,800,000, with a further $3,700,000 to be provided by the Dominion government—from the pockets of the taxpayers of Canada. The money for pensions does not come from "the government," as critics of old age pension policies are so prone to assume. It comes from the income-earning people of the nation. For that reason it will be necessary to work toward a progressively-improved welfare system for those past the prime of life, but with a full appreciation of where the money is coming from, in order that an enduring plan may be founded on solid financing—rather than on well-meant but impractical dreams.

The ultimate solution to the problem should be universal contributory old age insurance, under a plan whereby each citizen will pay throughout his lifetime, with contributions from his employer and the government, into a fund from which he will receive a basic retirement income after a certain age. That is a program for the future which must be achieved step by step.

'COME BACK TO ERIN'

SINCE THE CRYPTIC ANNOUNCEMENT by Prime Minister de Valera two years ago that Eire was a republic within the British Commonwealth of Nations, much has transpired to indicate a growing accord between the republicans of the Emerald Isle and the people of Britain. It has not been forgotten that thousands of young Irishmen donned uniforms to fight for the cause of liberty against Hitler in the Second World War. The interdependence of their country and Britain has become ever more apparent. Each needs the other to bolster economies that are far from robust at the present time.

It is not surprising, then, that much of the emigration from the land of the shamrock during 1946 was across the Irish Sea to England. The implication in this trend seems to be that the much publicized irreconcilability between Eire and Britain is far from as positive as some would suggest.

What the population shift will mean to southern Ireland will be a matter of some concern to this republic within the Commonwealth. It is particularly significant that of the 30,000 who emigrated, approximately two-thirds were women, the majority under 30 years of age. Here are the potential mothers of a generation that might have helped Prime Minister de Valera to achieve his desired increase in population from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000. Unless some inducement is found to prevent this drift away from their native land, the problems of insufficient population will become ever more acute for Eire and disturbing to Britain which, regardless of traditional frictions, must depend on her neighbor for a large amount of agricultural imports.

It would appear that the accomplishment of Mr. de Valera's mystical republic within the Commonwealth has not restored to his section of Ireland the heavenly endowments told in song and story. The emigration developments, on the other hand, give added significance and urgency to the plea in the popular ballad, "Come Back to Erin."

RE-CREATION

A LIGHT BREEZE WRINKLES THE face of the lake in a smile of welcome. The shimmering leaves of birches whisper a bashful greeting and the soft green of vegetation beneath them forms an inviting couch for the man who has come from the dusty highway to rest on this secluded shore. Here he finds refreshment for the eye and spirit in the silver of the tree trunks, the untarnished freshness of clean foliage and the unclouded blue of the water.

From an unseen beach come the laughing cries of children at play, softened by distance. He has not that solitude that breeds a sense of disquiet. He has, in its place, a cheerful privacy, the opportunity to take in the sounds of human activity if he wishes, or to close his mind to such distractions in simple contemplation of the good things about him. There is the purity of the air, washed over the moving water, the subtle fragrance of the surrounding trees, the brightness of a summer sky, and all the components of that soothing balm nature prepares for tired eyes and tired minds. Here a man might recline, freeing his thoughts of life's complexities and storing up the composure and strength on which the dignity of living depends.

Aussie Proposal

In the following article, published in some of the Australian daily newspapers, Mr. L. J. McConnan, manager of the National Banks of Australia and chairman of the Associated Banks of Victoria, suggests ways in which Australia can help Britain in her economic difficulties.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO in London you could sit down any day in a panelled steaming chop house or at many a humbler horse-box hostelry "to devour steaks, joints, chops and porter, cheese, potatoes and greens . . . you could dine very comfortably for 2 shillings and leave a pile of coppers for that loquacious piece of old England, the waiter."

Today in London one sits down to meals which—if they can be called meals—led someone to remark recently, with a poignant humor that must touch the heart of any British person wherever he be, that England had become a "starch-happy" nation. This contrast is at the core of the British problem; a problem which by no stretch of the imagination can be escaped or side-tracked by any part of the British brotherhood throughout the world, including in particular, us here in Australia.

BRITAIN, WHICH OF ALL the belligerents contributed most to victory in terms of human endeavor and human endurance over the longest period of time, certainly emerged from the conflict a victor, but a victor which had accumulated debts to her allies amounting to the colossal sum in Australian money of $4,125,000,000.

There should be no need for me to emphasize why Britain's recovery is so important to the world and to ourselves. I think we make a serious mistake if we believe that the importance of Britain's recovery is dependent primarily upon economic reasons. It is not.

THE MOST IMPORTANT REASON behind my own ardent hope that Britain will recover rapidly—is that I believe that the world is in great need of Britain's moral and political leadership, which is, perhaps, a unique contribution that she alone can make. I believe there are several practical steps Australia can take at once, but in the first place a brief explanation of our financial position vis-a-vis Britain, is necessary. It is to be remembered that, on balance, we are still in debt to Great Britain.

We owe Britain around $600,000,000 in the form of long-term loans, which over the past half century or more Britain has lent for our development. Since 1939, however, we have accumulated in British liquid cash resources which at present total about $220,000,000. This money is available to Australia at any time for the purchase of British goods.

THE $220,000,000 HELD to our credit in London is considerably above the pre-war average of, perhaps, $150,000,000. We must, of course, retain some reasonable funds as a working balance, and no doubt this needs to be somewhat in excess of the pre-war $150,000,000 if for no other reason than that, on the whole, prices of imports have risen by over 100 per cent since 1939. In other words, any cash we have in London will go only about half as far in the purchase of imports as it would in pre-war years.

THE STEPS TO WHICH I FEEL WE should give immediate and serious consideration may be set out briefly as follows:

We could consider surrendering our claims to a reasonable portion of the $220,000,000 ready cash standing to Australia's credit in London, or come to some arrangement with Britain whereby for an agreed period of time we limited the amount of these funds we spend each year. By this means we would deliberately reduce our ability to purchase British goods, and thereby leave more of her products for export to the dollar countries, particularly the United States of America.

It would be practicable for us to export to Britain "free of charge." Money with which to pay the Australian producers of the foodstuffs, raw materials, etc., exported to Britain could be obtained from the diversion of moneys raised from taxation or from internal loans.

IN THIS WAY we would deliberately accept some sacrifice of our domestic standards of life and the pursuit of domestic improvement by way of national works, social services, and so on, to help Britain.

We could make a special and determined effort to lift up as rapidly as possible our production of primary products, especially foodstuffs and, by continuing to curtail our own consumption, provide more for Britain.

WE COULD, and should, take every possible step speedily to expand our exports to countries other than Britain—especially to the dollar countries—and turn over to Britain for her use the dollars received in payment for our exports. A rapid and substantial increase in our annual production of gold should be a great help here, as it can at all times be readily exchanged for dollars.

We should be prepared, for the time being, to keep our imports from the dollar area countries to a minimum.

LET US NOT FORGET that we exist as a nation because we enjoyed the protection of the British Empire in two world wars, and we still need that protection. If we want to take a still more material view, let us remember that Great Britain always has been, and still is, our best trade customer.

Four Different Views On Germany

By ALBERT MOUSSET

TODAY, two years after the liberation, the Allies are still seeking a formula that will bring them together on the problem around which all the others revolve, the problem of Germany.

Russia has never expressed a very definite stand on the German question. Her reserve can be explained. For her, the problem of Germany boils down to two fundamentals: security and reparations. Now the territorial securities that she took pains to procure at the end of hostilities and the protective coating constituted by the states in her zone of influence enable her to regard discussions on security with relative serenity. As for reparations, they remain her chief concern; she will rally to whatever general solution will give her the most satisfaction in this regard.

POSITION CHANGED

The England of Foreign Secretary Bevin no longer sees the German problem in the same light as did that of Winston Churchill. Churchill envisaged a balanced Europe guaranteed by an agreement between France and Germany, but favored strict control of the politics and economy of the Reich. Bevin has greater belief in the possibility of the Reich's becoming democratic.

As for the United States, they have completely changed their position with regard to Germany. Originally enthusiastic about the Morgenthau plan which would have transformed the Reich into an agricultural country, they now propose to rebuild her industrial power. This recovery occupies first place in their plan for economic co-operation with the Europe of tomorrow.

FRANCE FIRM

If the objection is raised that they are fostering the rebirth of a political power which is bound to recreate in time the same state of affairs that precipitated the world into war, they reply that industrial concentration on the contrary will make efficient control possible and that in case of war—if that control should ever prove ineffective—one atomic bomb would be enough to wipe out the danger spots in an instant.

France is the only country which has stood firmly by her original arguments. Her foreign secretary, Georges Bidault, is using the same language in 1947 as he used in 1944. Tirelessly he reminds his allies that since Russia has raised a barrier against the Reich which shelters her from any possibility of an eventual German attack, France remains the only large European country directly threatened by such an offensive.

TEMPTATION

Common sense and the interests of peace demand that the most heeded advice be that of the most exposed country. France has perhaps a greater stake in the economic recovery of Germany than has any other power. It is of the utmost importance to her that her neighbor should not sink to miserable living standards nor be torn by social conflicts. But the cycle of aggressions of which she has been the victim in the course of history makes it absolutely impossible for her to espouse any policy based on the "pacifism" or good will of her neighbor.

Whether we like it or not, upon the security of France depends that of Europe and of the whole world, and a weakened France would be the most formidable temptation for Germany.

Freedom And Progress India Watchwords

India Information Service

THE CONGRESS Working Committee has laid down a program for celebrating "fittingly and solemnly" August 15 when India becomes a Dominion. In a resolution on the subject it says: "The working committee welcomes the ending of domination in India and the dawn of freedom for which her people have labored and suffered for generations. That freedom has come in a manner which does not bring full joy with it for it is accompanied by the non-acceptance of some parts of the country and the breaking up of the living unity of India, which history and tradition had fashioned and which was firmly tied up with the ideal of freedom."

"The committee believes that the destiny of India will yet be realized and that, when passions have cooled, a new and stronger unity based on good will and co-operation will emerge. The committee realizes fully that the ending of British rule throughout India is an event of historic and world significance which opens the doors of freedom and opportunity to our people and which will have far-reaching consequences in national and international affairs.

"To India it brings substantial attainment of her objective and freedom to advance according to the wishes of her people."

The program of celebration includes the proclamation of August 15 as a public holiday, the hoisting of the national flag over public and private buildings, and the holding of meetings to explain the significance of the occasion.

The committee calls upon the people to "dedicate themselves anew to the national cause and, more particularly, to freedom and progress of the backward classes and the common man." It urges people to begin this new era "with determination to extend full freedom and opportunity to every citizen, to whatever religion or class he or she may belong."

FOSTERING LEARNING
Winnipeg Free Press

It is wrong to believe that a national library exists exclusively for the use of specialists and scholars; the only error greater than this is the belief that scholars can be found only among professors or the graduates of universities. The love of learning is more widely spread than Canadians permit themselves to believe. It should be encouraged and fostered. A national library is needed if this awakening sense of national learning is to take place auspiciously.

GOOD NEIGHBORS NEEDED

Daily newspaper dispatches tell of old wars still smoldering, and new "flares" bursting out here and there. This reminds us that "Fear" is at the root of all war—fear, which contradicts the divine law.

The plain duty of the leaders of the U.N. is to apply the principle of "Love-thy-neighbor-as thyself" to the existing international tangle. There is still time to save the situation—if they go to it with a will.

When the United Nations cease throwing stones at each other, and recall how President Roosevelt fathered the "good neighbor" policy, then apply it to themselves, they will find that it still works. Mutual tolerance after the Boer War provided a working example of a practical burying of the hatchet.

MERCHANT MARINE

This is to thank you on behalf of the 15,000 men of Canada's wartime Merchant Marine, for the publicity you gave the efforts of this society in the fight we waged for rehabilitation legislation during the recent session of the House of Parliament.

While the House did not extend to Merchant Navy veterans the benefits the other three forces are receiving, the promise of the Prime Minister that a committee will be appointed to deal with our cause at the next session, is indeed a heartening indication that finally our government is ready to recognize the services we rendered our country.

Aside from the fact that we are disappointed at having to wait another year, we are going to keep on fighting and once more we ask your readers to write the Prime Minister asking him to personally give consideration to the rehabilitation problems of Canada's Merchant Navy veterans.

This society feels the citizens of Canada are not agreeable to the government making no provision in the matter of education, pensions, housing, etc.; for the men who rendered Canada such a valuable service in the Battle of the Atlantic.

OUR HIGHWAYS

Much is seen in your columns re the road conditions in B.C., and on Vancouver Island in particular. Col. R. L. Fortt, in the issue of July 29, points out the amount of taxes we motorists have to pay, and suggests such revenue should be expended on the roads.

One particularly odious form of "chiseling" indulged in by the B.C. government is the demand upon anyone coming here to reside, from another province, that they must take out a license, etc. Having already paid for a license in Manitoba it seems most unreasonable to have to take out another in B.C.

I think the reason why the government does not earmark these revenues for highway purposes is that they might be accused of "highway" robbery.

Global Survey

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

BRITAIN'S economic crisis has reached a point of such gravity that the harassed socialist government is preparing to inaugurate extreme remedial action forthwith.

We get a measure of the seriousness of the situation in the forecast that there will be further large-scale slashes in the country's already scanty food rations. Such a move would represent pretty close to a last-ditch stand, since John Bull's once expansive fifth long ago gave way to leanness under wartime food shortages.

This and other drastic action is to be announced in the House of Commons next Wednesday when Prime Minister Attlee presents a program for grappling with one of the greatest problems any British government has had to face. The public knows also that the nation's armed strength is to be cut, that the general standard of living is to be scaled down and that labor will be asked to work longer hours.

All these facts, and more, have been widely advertised by authoritative sources, which would indicate that the government wants as much publicity as possible. One obvious reason is that the British public must be prepared to meet the emergency. However, I think we are safe in saying the thing cuts a lot deeper, and that Prime Minister Attlee and his cabinet are exceedingly anxious to register the facts in America, to whom they are looking for further substantial help.

The $3,750,000,000 which the United States loaned to Britain is running out like the sands of an hour glass — far faster than anyone had dreamed would happen.

British official quarters say London is asking Washington to relax further the terms of the loan agreement. England wants a change in the clause which prevents her from increasing imports from her Dominions at the expense of imports from the United States. The point of this is that Britain can pay for food and other supplies from the Dominions with English money (pounds sterling) whereas she must pay for purchases in America with dollars.

Years ago grasshoppers won a kind of immortality by stopping a train, but now fish flies have beaten this performance by stopping three trains. The railwaymen with crossed fingers are hoping the grasshoppers won't try to win their record back.

OUT-MODED SERVICE
Edmonton Bulletin

The old principle of offering a service to the public has pretty well passed out of modern business life. "Business and labor alike are out to make money, and each says, with the rich and unpleasant Vanderbilt of two generations ago: "The public be damned."

INSATIABLE

Ottawa Journal
Locke, the South African, negotiates one of Canada's best golf courses four times and cuts 16 strokes from par—then strolls off muttering that he was dissatisfied with his putting. Which proves our contention we might as well stay in the 90-and-over class.

JOHN PAUL JONES

Washington Post
John Paul Jones may come into his own on his 200th birthday, as the Father of the American Navy. The navy has never forgotten him, but somehow he has never had the niche in our hall of fame that, because of his example and his deeds, is his due. Few navies can have had a baptism of glory such as John Paul Jones gave ours. A single engagement at sea put it so saliently on the map that Catherine of Russia stole the victor of it and gave him admiral's rank in the Turkish wars. The rank was American. A hero, like a prophet, is often forgotten by his contemporaries, and this happened to John Paul Jones, though perhaps there was reason for this neglect in the general disorder of post-revolutionary times, as well as the fact that our naval pioneer was one of the galaxy of heroes who made America independent. However, John Paul Jones never got his proper meed of praise as time went on. This bright and particular star in our national firmament lay almost forgotten in an obscure graveyard in Paris till 1905. Now he lies in the chapel crypt at Annapolis, a constant inspiration to the young men in training to go down to the sea in fighting ships.

White Man's Development Of Arctic Depends On Examination Of Eskimos By Queen's Expedition

By NORMAN M. MACLEOD
Victoria Times Staff
Correspondent

OTTAWA — The far northern Eskimo today became a fellow of top-flight interest to Canadian medical science as a Queen's University research party took off by air to learn why he is immune from cancer, why hardening of the arteries never troubles him, and why his women-folk have the lowest fertility rate in the world.

The Queen's University expedition hopes to discover also whether there is any basic physical difference between the Eskimos and the white man which stands in the way of the latter adapting himself to the Arctic environment in which the Eskimo thrives. Three highly practical reasons underlie the search for an answer to this question, viz:

1. The belief that treasures of mineral wealth as yet undressed lie buried in the Far North and that Arctic rigors must be endured if they are to be recovered.
2. The probability that World War III, if and when it comes, will be fought partially, at least, on an Arctic front and that white troops will have to serve there.
3. The prospect—remote as yet—that pressure of population in the older settled districts some day will compel white infiltration into the Eskimo country.

TAKE FREEZING UNIT

The Queen's University expedition is under the auspices of the Departments of National Health, and National Defence, as well as the National Research Council and Queen's University itself, is headed by Dr. Malcolm Brown, associate professor of medicine in Queen's medical faculty, and included Dr. R. G. Sinclair, professor of biochemistry in Queen's medical faculty, and Dr. L. B. Cronk, Queen's medical faculty research worker.

The party will set up a base laboratory at Southampton Island and will carry on six weeks of field work. A deep freeze unit weighing 500 pounds is among the equipment taken by the party. The purpose of this unit is to preserve medical specimens and samples so that much of the laboratory work arising out of the project can be done on the party's return to civilization.

There have been many previous medical expeditions to the Eskimo. In the past, however, these expeditions have all set up their laboratories at some base point and had the Eskimos come there for examination and treatment. The Queen's University party is adopting for the first time the plan of going to the Eskimo in his native environment, and carrying out observations and researches.

Dr. Brown, head of the party, describes the Eskimo as a source of almost endless medical interest to the white man.

MUCH DEPENDS ON FINDINGS

The main question is whether there is some basic difference in his metabolism (the process of transforming food into energy), which gives him a reaction to his diet and environment which a white man can never develop. If there is such a difference, then the white man may well have to forego his dreams of some day developing the mineral wealth believed to lie under the Arctic ice fields; he may add new fears to his mental picture of a third world war fought on an Arctic front; and he will have to write off the Arctic regions as possible elbow room for the white race when the pressure of population becomes acute.

If there should be a difference in the basic metabolism of the Eskimo, his reported freedom from cancer and arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries), may have little hopeful significance for the white man. If there is no such basic difference, the Eskimo's reported immunity to these diseases may well afford an interesting point of departure for new medical research.

One fact at least suggests that there may be a basic difference. One of the surest ways in which a medical laboratory goes about producing arteriosclerosis in an animal is to place it upon a high fat diet. The Eskimo is believed popularly to live characteristically upon a high fat diet. Yet no case of arteriosclerosis has ever been reported among the race. The fact may well be explained by some basic metabolism difference.

Seeing Japan

GEN. CRERAR

TOKYO (AP)—Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, senior officer of the Canadian army, and his party arrived at the Haneda airport today for an inspection of the occupation.

Gen. Crerar will confer with Gen. MacArthur tomorrow. He will review U.S. units in the Tokyo-Yokohama area Wednesday and place a wreath in the Canadian section of the occupation cemetery. An extended visit to the British occupation area in southern Honshu will follow.

Observers suggested Gen. Crerar was visiting Japan as a preliminary to peace treaty talks and to look into possibilities of resuming trade with Japan.

French Students Pose As Newspapermen

LONDON (Reuter)—Two Parisian students holidaying in Britain on three shillings (60 cents each) parlayed their poverty into a meeting with the Royal Family, it was disclosed Friday.

The students, Maurice Collinon, 25, and Regis Thomas, 22, said they were on a three-week hitchhike through the United Kingdom when they met reporters waiting for the Home Fleet at Glasgow.

The reporters left in the press barge without the students, but Collinon and Thomas bluffed port officials into accepting them as French "journalists." A launch was dispatched to pick up the students and they arrived aboard the destroyer Solebay in time to meet the Royal Family and accompany them around the warship.

Robbers Loot Bank Vaults

Life savings of Mr. and Mrs. George Moore, left, seen with grandson Teddy, were lost when bandits looted 72 safety deposit boxes after smashing through a brick wall at Carp, Ont., bank.

Robert W. Moore, right, seen with Allan Wilson, is owner of a general store in Carp, and, like his father, lost his savings. Securities, gems and cash taken from the bank may total an estimated $250,000, with more than $110,000 already definitely listed.

First Of British Emigrants Fly To Work In Ontario

LONDON (CP)—Highly skilled craftsmen, their bags packed with tools and other things, today joined the first flight of emigrants for Toronto under the Ontario provincial government scheme, taking off from the Northolt Airport at 6 p.m. (11 a.m., C.D.T.).

Of the wide variety of trades and crafts represented, six of the emigrants are listed as farmers, two as fitters and welders, two as toolmakers, two forestry workers, one agriculture draftsman and another agricultural worker. The group contains only one domestic worker, Miss Violet Earle of Kensal Rise, London, and only one locomotive fireman, S. W. Grinstead of Feltham, Middlesex.

There is also a maintenance engineer, lathe operator, carpenter, butcher, aircraft pressman, centre lathe turner, waitress and a waiter.

The emigrants assembled in London for weighing in and were taken by motor coach to the airport. A traffic officer and other hostesses guided them through customs and emigration formalities.

Distribute Atomic Stockpiles Among Nations, Says Commission

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—United Nations' atomic delegates warned today that atomic stockpiles and production facilities must be distributed among the nations to avoid tempting an aggressor to launch an atomic war.

In one of a series of papers which make up a preview of the second report of the U.N. Atomic Energy Commission, a group of delegates declared seizure of stockpiles and production facilities using nuclear fuel, would be a signal that a country was about "to embark on atomic warfare." Russia did not take part in drawing up the papers. Gen. A. G. L.

McNaughton, Canadian delegate to the commission, helped prepare the papers.

"It is of vital importance that production facilities, facilities utilizing nuclear fuel and stockpiles should be distributed among nations in such a way as to minimize the military advantage their seizure would provide for a nation which has aggressive intentions," the delegates said.

"A well-planned distribution could not in itself prevent atomic war, but the objective should be to decrease the incentive for any one nation or group of nations to attempt to secure a military advantage by seizure."

The papers, framed by the delegates in their individual capacities and still not approved by their governments, will be tackled by the political committee of the commission next Wednesday.

High Officials See Canadian Scottish In Action At Camp

Lieutenant-Governor Charles A. Banks, in his capacity as honorary-colonel of the Canadian Scottish Regiment, and Brig E. C. Plow, C.B.E., D.S.O., officer commanding M.D. 11, were distinguished visitors at the Heals Range camp of the regiment's Reserve Army 1st Battalion today.

Activity at the camp today was the closing chapter to a week-long training schedule and tomorrow the unit will break-up camp and return to town to resume its weekly evening training sessions at Bay Street Armoury.

Platoon and section battle tactics, complete with effects to give them a realistic touch, were viewed by the visiting party, which also included Lt.-Col. A. C. Perron, officer commanding coast defences, Col. J. R. Kingham, E.D., former commanding officer of the 1st Battalion of World War II, was the Governor's A.D.C.

Following a tour of the camp and a view of officers and men in action in make-believe infantry warfare, the visitors, who were accompanied by Lt.-Col. R. D. Travis, commanding officer of the unit, returned to the officers' mess for lunch.

Children Receive Protection Against Diphtheria

At the special clinic held at the Health Centre on Pandora Avenue Friday afternoon, Dr. J. H. Preston, assistant medical health officer, has a busy time immunizing Victoria's children against diphtheria. Here he is shown with nine-year-old Teddy Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Larson, 152 Olive Street, who is receiving his first injection of the antitoxin. Nearly 40 children were immunized Friday, and 36 Wednesday. Another special clinic will be held Monday from 1.30 to 3.30, Dr. J. L. Murray Anderson, medical health officer, announced, and the regular clinic will be held Wednesday from 3 to 5.

$1 Fine For Nanaimo Strikers; Act Held In Need Of Clarifying

VANCOUVER (CP)—A member of the British Columbia Legislature and two labor leaders agree with Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts, who Friday convicted 22 laundry workers at Nanaimo of participating in an illegal strike and fined them $1 each, that B.C.'s new labor bill needed some clarification.

Allan J. McDowell, Coalition member for Vancouver Centre, said that "of the 76 clauses contained therein, only two or three needed clarification, and this will probably be done at the next session."

Ald. R. K. Gervin, A.F.L. executive, said he thought the "government recognizes the fact that the act has to be amended."

"More than word correction is needed to rectify this anti-labor legislation," said Harvey Murphy, vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Labor (C.C.L.).

OUT SINCE JUNE 9

NANAIMO (CP)—Twenty-two women workers striking from the Imperial Laundry here since June 9, were convicted Friday of participating in an illegal strike and fined one dollar each.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts, who presided at the trial centred around British Columbia's new labor code, dismissed three bargaining agents of the Laundry Workers' Union (C.C.L.), finding them not guilty of the charge of having authorized the strike.

The magistrate said the new labor legislation, under which the prosecutions were launched, needs clarification.

In addition to the $1.00 fine, the women workers who went on strike in protest against dismissal of two employees for being absent without permission, paid one dollar costs each.

Magistrate Beevor-Potts originally had ruled Friday in the second day of the trial, that the women were guilty of a "technical and illegal strike and imposed suspended sentences, imposing $2.00 costs in each case."

But the original decision was altered when the question of recognition of bond was introduced and the magistrate convicted the women and fined them $1.00 and costs each.

It was understood that if the original sentence had been retained, the women might be re-arrested had they resumed strike activities, under contempt of court.

B.C. conciliation officer John Place of Wellington gave evidence Friday that in his dealings with the bargaining agents, Dan Radford, Percy Lawson and Mrs. Eula Patterson, he had obtained the impression that the June 9 walkout was a "spontaneous action."

Magistrate Beevor-Potts said the legislation lacked clarified intention especially in the case of the union officials where the penalties were heavier. Maximum penalty in their case could be $50 per day for each day of illegal striking.

While the court held suspicions that the union officials might have guilt, the evidence produced was not sufficient to convict them, he said.

Visitor Finds Irish Far Better Off Than British People

"While the people of Ireland are faced with many problems they are far better off than their neighbors across the sea in England," S. J. Clotworthy, a recent visitor to Eire told the Victoria Lions Club Friday.

The three chief problems, he said, were a fuel shortage, inadequate transportation and food rationing.

The Irish, this year, are burning wet peat and green wood because the coal shortage in England has cut off supplies, Mr. Clotworthy said.

Gas for cooking is turned on only during certain hours of the day and the electricity is rationed. "If you use more than your quota of electricity, they cut off the current and take away your range. When they think you have repented, they return your range—you pay to have it reconnected—and the current is turned back on."

Transportation also constitutes a problem for the Irish. Very few trains are running and those that do are slow. Travel by automobile is restricted because of gasoline rationing.

Service in cities where street-cars operate is good but bus service is poor. Owing to a shortage of springs, transportation companies have made a ruling not more than four persons shall stand in a bus.

Bicycles are extremely popular with the Irish. In Dublin, a city of 400,000, it has been estimated every fourth person owns a bicycle. In the country, donkey carts are used.

"All foods are rationed—even bread," Mr. Clotworthy said. "However, the Irish are not as hard up as the English in this regard. They can get a little

Shortening, Lard Still Hard To Get

Supplies of shortening and lard are still short and distributors here have no indication when the situation may improve, J. S. Hall, local manager of Gainer's Ltd., said today.

"A shortage of oil is responsible for the lack," Mr. Hall said. "Supplies of shortening and lard coming on the market are spasmodic."

Plenty Of Tobacco

OTTAWA (CP)—A record tobacco crop in Canada this year was forecast today by Dr. Norman MacRae, chief of the Central Experimental Farm's tobacco division, who has just returned from a tour of the major tobacco producing areas.

MISS EILEEN WILLS

California Trip To Follow Mackenzie-Atherton Vows

A motor trip to California is the honeymoon agenda of Edgar William Mackenzie and his bride, the former Miss Catharine Essie Atherton, whose marriage took place this morning at 10.30. Pink gladioli decorating the chapel of the Peace of God, Christ Church Cathedral added to the dignified beauty of the marriage ritual performed by Bishop H. E. Sexton.

W. A. Atherton gave his sister-in-law, Mrs. C. W. Mackenzie, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Atherton, of Victoria. Cloud blue crepe simply styled with softly draped skirt, was worn by the bride for the occasion. An off-the-face Stetson hat, trimmed with a bow and the back complemented her look and she carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli, gardenias, pink roses and swansonia. As bridal attendant, Miss Queenie Dawson, Vancouver, chose a silver grey ensemble with navy accessories and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli, carnations and sweet peas.

The groom, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Mackenzie, Victoria, was attended by Don McDiarmid, R. D. Bennett was usher.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Atherton, 3805 Quadra Street. White gladioli were arranged before the fireplace where the bride and groom, assisted by Mrs. R. V. Parfitt, sister of the bride, received guests. White candles in silver holders flanked the three-tier wedding cake. Aaron Parfitt proposed the bridal toast. Assisting in serving were Mrs. R. D. Bennett and Misses Helen and Dorothy Parfitt.

For her going away costume, Mrs. Mackenzie wore a yellow wool suit tailored on dressmaker lines, crownless natural straw hat, white accessories and corsage bouquet of gardenias, and stephanotis.

On return, Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie will make their home at 1050 Southgate Street.

Look, Girls—Males Leading Steno Field

WINNIPEG (CP)—Women had better look to their laurels in one field which has generally been conceded to them. A survey conducted by the National Employment Service here indicates that on the average men are better at shorthand and typewriting than women.

However, the agency offers a word of warning to any male who might become a bit puffy—a girl holds the speed typing record of 84 words a minute.

While reluctantly admitting men to be superior in this field on the average, Miss Georgia Porter, testing officer, observed it was hardly fair to draw comparisons. Out of 142 applicants tested in the first three and one half months only 11 were males. The tone of her voice suggested that possibly the "deck had been stacked."

Miss Porter believes that the reason for the better showing of the men in tests is because they take them more seriously than women. Incidentally, it is the man who holds the perfect score for shorthand—120 words a minute.

Miss Porter says the tests began early in April with an average of three persons a day being examined. The tests are entirely voluntary and are not in any sense an examination.

W. H. Darracott, district manager of the employment service, said the tests have been accepted by both employers and applicants.

They are used simply as a measure to assist an applicant in finding a job he or she can handle, he said. He cited the case of an employer who took a girl who could only do 20 words a minute on the typewriter. He told the service that "in spite of her slowness at least I know what I can expect."

Social Situations

The situation: You are about to relate a confidence with the phrase, "I really shouldn't tell you this but..."

Wrong way: Go right ahead, feeling your introduction will put you in the clear.

Right way: Decide to keep still about the matter. If you feel it necessary to use the phrase, then don't tell the confidence.

Link With Past Dazzles All Visitors At Antique Show

LONDON (CP)—An apt slogan for the Antique Dealers' Fair, revived after seven years' absence from the London scene, would be "Britain Has Made It." Antique treasures fit for Aladdin's Cave sparkle and glitter from every corner of a long cream-walled showroom at Grovesnor House Hotel, Park Lane, drawing sighs of envy and admiration from thousands of visitors from all parts of Britain and the continent.

At every point the eye is captured by some brilliant piece of handcraft executed regardless of time and labor by some patient, devoted craftsman born when mass production was unknown.

Exhibits range from 5,000-year-old pottery to silver from the days of Edward VI and furniture from the early 19th century. There is a George I kettle, stand and lamp, sold last year for £2,700 ($10,800); teapot of solid gold made in 1785 and two Chien Lang porcelain figures of famille bantam cocks lent by the Duchess of Kent.

Together the exhibits are valued at more than £4,000,000 ($16,000,000). Months before the fair opened experts scoured Britain for art treasures worthy of inclusion. Nothing made later than 1830 was considered.

"The search showed that Britain still possesses an inexhaustible store of works of art and craftsmanship," said an official of the Antique Dealers' Association.

Queen Mary loaned a gay miniature by Bone of George IV after a portrait by Lawrence; also a Louis Quinze gold, pearl, ivory and lapis-lazuli box cunningly in-

Romantic Woman M.P. Thinks Princess Followed Heart

LONDON (CP)—Auburn-haired Mrs. Leah Manning, long active in the Labor movement and now member of parliament for Epping, a working-class district, says Britain was given a "mental lift" by the engagement of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten.

"I have a romantic heart and therefore I have always been anxious that Princess Elizabeth should marry someone she loved and not be forced into marrying for political considerations," Mrs. Manning told the Canadian Press.

"I am quite satisfied she has followed the dictations of her heart for she had the radiantly happy look of just any young girl in love."

Goodwill towards the princess appeared to be universal irrespective of political party.

"Everyone in the United Kingdom knows that members of the Royal Family do what ordinary people call 'a good job' and there must be few who fail to feel satisfaction that she has made a happy match."

RAPPED KNUCKLES

Fellow members of parliament look on Mrs. Manning as far removed from romantic ideas. She is a briskly determined member who sometimes files in the face of her own party. At the Labor Party convention this year she rapped those who felt married women could be lured back to factories by promises of silk

Guild Garden Party

St. David's-by-the-Sea Women's Guild will hold a garden party at the home of Mrs. K. R. Genn, Parker Avenue, Cordova Bay, on Wednesday, commencing at 2.30. There will be stalls of home cooking, vegetables, flowers, home-made candy and several contests. Pony rides will be an added attraction. Afternoon tea will be served during the afternoon.

French Approve Pre-Fab Houses

PARIS, July (CP)—"A corner of paradise" said a French worker looking into the combined kitchen and living-room of a Swedish prefabricated frame house at the international housing exhibition.

Two houses are on show, one of the same type as the Swedish house donated to Normandy and containing two flats of four rooms each, and the other a more exclusive villa of five rooms. The attractive equipment of the first house has been supplied by the Swedish Co-operative Wholesale Society, while the five-room villa is entirely equipped with "Trivabysg" furniture, assembled from loose parts, supplied by the Swedish firm NK.

SOME ORCHIDS HAVE AERIAL ROOTS AND CLING TO TREES

Many kinds of plants produce small seeds, but the smallest seeds of all are those of the orchid plants.

Orchid seeds have been compared in size to tiny grains of dust. One kind of orchid, the "acropora", grows a pod which contains from 65,000,000 to 75,000,000 seeds.

Think of that many seeds going out into the world from a single plant. If they all took root and grew, the earth soon would be covered with orchid blossoms. As it is, only a few seeds out of a million fall where they can grow. The seeds are delicate, and lose their power of sprouting if they do not lodge in the right place soon after the wind starts blowing them about.

MANY KINDS OF ORCHIDS

More than 7,500 kinds of orchids are known. They include such wild flowers of the woods and swamps as the lady-slipper, the mosses flower and the dragon's mouth.

In the Torrid Zone there are many kinds of orchids with "air roots." The seeds lodge in the bark of trees; then roots grow out and hang downward. The leaves of these plants grow upward.

Orchids do not draw their food from the trees. The roots take water from dew and rain, and the leaves drink in sunshine after the manner of other plants. Therefore we should never speak of orchids as "parasites." They do their own work of food-making and so on, even if some kinds do borrow a little space from trees.

In our climate, most orchids have roots which grow in the soil. Certain kinds are much prized as greenhouse plants, and their flowers bring high prices when sold on the market.

GROWING IS SLOW

Men who grow orchids plant in greenhouses have found it a work of years. In many cases the time from seed to flower is from four to six years. Certain rare types of orchids have taken as much as 18 years of care before they bloomed.

Orchids are known for their delicate beauty. Some of them are red others are yellow, purple, white or pink. A bluish red color appears on many blossoms, and it is used to describe the special color of "orchid."

People who want to buy orchids at a florist's shop are able to do so if they want to pay

SMALL SCRUBBERS FOR SMALL ELEPHANT—Elephant washing, usually considered to be a big job, doesn't really amount to much when the elephant in question is "Baby Brookfield." Stanley Mrizek, 8, and Johann Walsh, 9, timidly attempt to scrub the tiny pachyderm in Chicago's Brookfield Zoo.

Scripture: Proverbs 1:8-9; 6:20-23; 17:6; 19:18; 22:6; 23:22-26

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The Bible is a text-book not only of individual salvation, but also of family religion.

When the Philippian jailer (Acts 16), terror-stricken lest his prisoners should have escaped, but reassured by the voice of Paul, cried, "What must I do to be saved?" Paul replied, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." Other references in the price. Often a single blossom costs several dollars.

SOME GROW IN ROCKIES

Much less expensive are the lady-slippers which grow wild in various parts of this continent. There are about a dozen kinds of lady-slippers in the United States and Canada. Some of these grow in the Rocky Mountains, but they are more usual in wild parts of the Atlantic seaboard, down to Florida.

Orchids get along best in a warm, moist climate, but some of them grow as far north as Alaska and Greenland.

The mosses flower sometimes goes under the name of "pink lady-slipper." This used to be a common wild flower in the middle west of the United States, but it has become rare.

Bumblebees spread the pollen of mosses flowers. To obtain nectar they go down into the sac or "slipper" of a blossom, and their bodies are dusted with pollen. Then they visit another mosses flower, some of the pollen is left there.

New Tire Headquarters For Victoria

Dickinson & Dunn In Modern Premises

The establishment of a new auto tire shop, to be known as "Dickinson and Dunn," links two names that have long been known to Victoria and island motorists. The two partners, Tyson (Slim)

a luxury and balloon tires in their infancy. The Dickinson and Dunn Tire Shop is strategically located close to the site of the new arena, just behind "The Bay." The building is exceptionally fine, erected under contract by Messrs. Paine and Townsend. Finished in smart stucco it is the last word in design and a special feature is found in the glass walls of the showroom, specially designed so that reflection is eliminated.

All that is new and up to date in equipment for repair, retreading and recapping tires is to be found in the spacious workshops while the showroom gives ample facilities for the display of new tires. In this connection it is announced that white-wall tires will be arriving shortly, something long looked for by motorists. A special feature is made of the "General Squeezee" tire which provides perfection grip on wet pavements and allows that extra margin of safety. These are in addition to a wide variety of tires of every description and size. A special department of the business will be devoted to the handling of domestic appliances, washing machines, refrigerators, automatic hot-water heaters and radios. This department will be under the direction of Win Patton who has had special training in this work. Personnel on the staff have been carefully selected, each man behind him. Names that are well known locally are included, such as John Dunn, Frank Barclay, Ben Dyer.

Danger Of Military Censorship Arose In Canada Near War's End

TORONTO (CP) — Canada might have had a direct military censorship for the last months of the war if certain elements in the Department of National Defence had had their way, Gillis Purcell writes in the current issue of International Journal, published by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

Because of their dissatisfaction with voluntary censorship during the conscription crisis of November, 1944, these elements were determined to impose military censorship. Mr. Purcell, general manager of the Canadian Press, says in an article on wartime press censorship in Canada.

"The director of censorship gently but firmly stated the case against military censorship in a memorandum of Dec. 11, 1944, circulated to officers at National Defence Headquarters; it is questionable whether any newspaper representation in opposition to a military censorship could have been more to the point."

The article, condensed from a 50,000-word analysis compiled in a six-year study, outlines the principles on which the voluntary press censorship was based, its organization and its operations. Underlying factors in censorship and their relation to the operation of a fighting democracy are analyzed.

IN THE BALANCE

Freedom of speech in Canada hung in the balance in the latter part of the war when editors "came to accept the censors' edicts unquestioningly as fair and proper," Mr. Purcell writes. But the censors, "knowing facts the press could not know, pressed . . . for the rights of the people against the conservative nature of bureaucracy."

To avoid such danger in any future censorship, Mr. Purcell suggests the press of the country should be given access to the facts. This could be done by setting up an advisory committee of newspaper men with a definite voice in the censorship policy and access to even the most secret censorship files or by appointment of one newspaper representative as full-time consultant with the censors and services.

Four incidents which became topics of public discussion are detailed—the Houde and Hanson statements in the latter half of 1940, the Drew letter in 1942 and the so-called "Zombie" incident at the start of 1945.

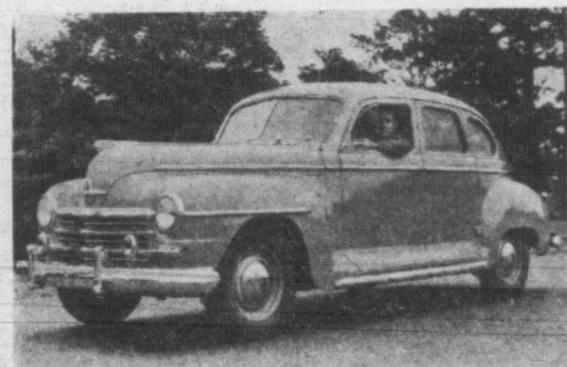

WORST MISTAKE

The censors made their "worst blunder of the war" in ruling against newspapers carrying the

"SIR" HOUSE PAINTER — On Toronto Island he is known as Dick Prescott, house painter. PLYMOUTH WELL TESTED

New 1947 Plymouth special four-door sedan which made the run from Detroit to the coast in five days.

New Model Has Gruelling Run

1947 Plymouth proves its worth in fast run from factory to coast.

When Ted Bramston, parts manager for McLeod-Lumsden Motors Limited, arranged to take delivery at the factory of a new 1947 Plymouth Special Sedan, making a test was no part of his program. Called to Windsor in the course of his duties as department head for the local firm, he decided to make the trip home by road. Crossing the line to Highway No. 10 from Detroit he set his radiator for the coast and home. Swinging across the plains of Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota and North Dakota, rolling steadily across Montana, the temperature often as high as 95 degrees, sweeping up over the Snoqualmie Pass with power in reserve he laid the miles behind him at the rate of over 700 per day to complete the distance of 3,590 miles to Seattle in five trouble-free days. Under every sort of driving conditions the car proved its capabilities to the utmost.

The riding comfort of the car fulfills the promise given by the graceful sweeping lines and Mr. Bramston expressed himself delighted with the economy of operation.

statement opposing national registration for which Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal was interned. "It was the duty of the censors to wait until newspapers submitted the story and then merely refuse to give it a legal clearance. By warning newspapers off, the censors were in effect: usurping the functions of the court."

The Drew letter of July 11, 1942, labelled as "directly contrary to the evidence of a whole" the findings of Sir Lyman Duff on Lt.-Col. George Drew's assertion that troops sent to Hong Kong were ill-trained and their dispatch mismanaged. Drew now is Premier of Ontario.

The censors would not approve publication of any part of the letter. "Throughout the censors were consistent—but they showed the effect of cabinet domination as clearly as in the Houde case. No apparent factor of security or national unity in either case justified the decision against publication. Had the newspapers been insistent on publishing the letter—and done so—it is questionable that prosecution would have ensued."

A report of a statement made by R. B. Hanson, then federal Conservative leader, at Charlottetown, October, 11, 1940, on an impending movement of British air training students to Canada was involved in the third case reviewed. The report was first released, killed 17 minutes later and then approved for publication within 14 minutes.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

"Open charges were made that the story was reinstated in order to embarrass the Conservative leader, who five months earlier had taken over the leadership of the party, decimated in the March elections. It is just as likely that a difference of opinion between the censors and air force security resulted in the off-again, on-again attitude."

The mass break of more than 100 home defence troops at Queen's Barracks, London, Ont., came in December, 1944, during the Grey North by-election and when submarines were active off Halifax. The censors ruled out the story because the reports could have given the enemy information that heavy troop movements overseas were in progress. The story was released January 19, when the overseas movement was completed.

Mr. Purcell writes it is impossible to state dogmatically whether politics on the cabinet level entered the case. On the one hand, it was stated at the outset that the story would be released when the troop movement was complete—as was done. On the other hand, it was argued that the Defence Department first wanted to bottle up the story, even considering establishment of military censorship, and finally became convinced in mid-January that newspaper pressure made inevitable announcement when the troops arrived.

Brooklyn's Winning Streak Last To Go

Brooklyn's 13-game win spree is the latest casualty of baseball's "heartbreak week" which also saw the end of Cincinnati's 16-game string and Pittsburgh's 21-game hitting streak.

Add to these disappointments the collapse of Boston Red Sox, who went into a four-game losing tailspin after seven straight victories, and the end Monday of New York Giants' consecutive game home run streak at 15.

Although St. Louis Cardinals pulled out of their downward plunge by thumping Philadelphia Phillies last night 6 to 1, it might well be that the Red Birds' pennant hopes also died during the week in three straight defeats at the hands of the Dodgers.

Chicago played the villain in the latest "heartbreak" ending the Brooks' longest success story since 1924 with a 10 to 8 triumph engineered by catcher Clyde McCullough's two-run homer in the ninth inning.

Joe Hattan an old Cub-tamer from way back with eight consecutive wins over Chicago to his credit in a two-year span, was rested and ready to finish when Hugh Casey threw the home run ball to McCullough to end a sorry afternoon.

GIANTS WIN

Dave Koslo was in superb form as he lefthanded the Giants to a 2 to 1 edge over Pittsburgh, striking out Hank Greenberg three times.

Canadian Legion Show Return To Form In Beating Bays

The Canadian Legion lacrosse club is rolling again and that spells trouble for other teams in the senior loop. Last night the Vets spotted J.B.A.A. a 4 to 0 lead and then came on with a rush to take the bitterly fought struggle, 14 to 11.

Blanked in the first period as Bob Aitken was unbeatable in the Bay nets, Legion found themselves on the short end of a 3 to 0 count at the breather. Bays added another tally early in the second canto before Legion marksmen adjusted their sights to retaliate with five unanswered markers.

Losers came back with two quick counters to regain the lead at 6 to 5, but Duff McCaghey and Norm Allen made short work of erasing that advantage, scoring two goals just before the intermission.

BAYS TIRE

The shorthanded Bays tired badly in the third period and Legion went on to build up an 11 to 7 margin. Bays outscored the Vets 4 goals to 3 in the final session as the winners were content to take things easy.

McCaghey, with three goals and two assists, and Red Mason, with three markers and one assist, topped the pointmakers. Bob Lomas tallied three for J.B.A.A.

Teams and scorers follow: Legion—Long, T. McKeachie 1, Ball 2, McKim, J. McKeachie 1, Mair, Mason 3, Cullin 2, Popham 1, Andrews, Bryant, McCaghey 3, Allen 1.

Many Champions; Record-Holders In Canadian Swim Meet From Victoria

When the Canadian amateur swimming and diving championships are held in the Crystal Garden, Aug. 11 and 12, many Dominion record holders and champions will be on hand to defend their laurels and not a few of these Olympic bound mermaids and mermen hail from Victoria.

Representing Victoria in the title gala will be members of Archie McKinnon's Flying "Y" squad and Bill Robertson's V.A.S.C. team. Irene Strong, holder of three senior Canadian marks and 10 junior records, will head a powerful contingent from the mainland clubs. The Ontario team, with Evelyn Buchanan, provincial senior women's diving champion and Glenna Maria Mills, unbeaten junior freestyle star, has already been nominated.

Quebec is expected to send along its usual strong team and a small but competent contingent is due from the prairie provinces. Peter Salmon, easily the outstanding men's Olympic prospect in the Dominion and holder of five junior marks in the breaststroke and medley swims as well as two senior breaststroke records, will compete in the Canadian meet as a senior for the first time.

Last year at Hamilton, Salmon captured the junior 100 yard breaststroke, the 150 yard junior medley and the 100 yard junior freestyle and was a member of the winning medley and relay teams.

Eric Jubb, the 16-year-old flash and record holder in the 40 and 100 yard junior backstroke, is entered in the complete slate of junior events on the program. Unless a dark horse appears somewhere along the route Jubb should clean the board in these events.

Ina Salmon and Joan Morgan, fair sex members of the "Y" and each the present holder of a Canadian record, will be competing. Miss Salmon will swim in the 200 yard breaststroke, 100 yard backstroke and 100 yard freestyle. Joan Morgan will enter the same events. Aileen Smyth, Marge Mowbray and Doreen Jaspas are other Y.M.C.A. senior women entrants.

Ron Neilson, freestyle, Dick Dowden 400-yard freestyle, Gordon Lawrence, 400 freestyle, Ken Hurn, 100 freestyle and relay, Len Coverdale, 200 breaststroke and 400 freestyle, Bob Johnstone, Lorne Bowden and Bob Montgomery are other "Y" men entered in various events.

Stan Powell, Ray Jubb, Bob Clarke, Barry Caviness, Bruce B. Irig, Walter Standbrook, and Abbott will round out the junior squad. Jean Mills, Gerry Long, Nita Anderson, May Freeman, Myfawnny Nixon and Jeanne McKay are junior competitors.

V.A.S.C. TEAM

Bill Dodderidge, holder of the Wrigley western Canada mile trophy and Jack Wellburn, B.C. senior men's mile champion top the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club's entry list. Dodderidge and Wellburn will compete in the 100 and 400 yard freestyle.

The junior team is made up of Bill Langford, Miles Dighton, Doug Stewart and Walter Balobala. Langford will enter the 100 freestyle, Dighton the 100 and 200 freestyle and Stewart the 100 breaststroke. Balobala, besides swimming in the 200 freestyle, will with the other three juniors make up the relay team.

Marion Austin, runner-up for the senior women's B.C. championship at Kelowna last year is the club's lone entrant in the women's division.

List of events follows: Senior men and women: 100 and 400 yard freestyle, 100 yard backstroke, 200 yard breaststroke; 400 yard freestyle relay and three metre spring board diving. Junior men and women: 100 and 200 yard freestyle, 100 yard backstroke, 100 yard breaststroke, 200 yard freestyle relay and three metre spring board diving.

Bennett Gains Doubles Final In B.C. Tennis

Henry Bennett, Victoria city champion, and Grace Logie of Vancouver were the lone Canadian survivors in the final rounds of the open events of the British Columbia lawn tennis championships being run off today at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club.

Playing great doubles Bennett, partnered by hard-hitting Jim Livingstone of San Francisco, ousted the Lewis brothers of Salt Lake City, in Friday's rousing semifinal. Capturing the first set on one service break at 6-4, the eventual winners volleyed and served brilliantly throughout the second to win at 8-6. Going into the third set Bennett and Livingstone relaxed slightly and the brothers Lewis, always dangerous, ran up a 5-1 lead, and held two set points before they were finally overtaken and defeated 8-6. Paul Hauptert and George Kraft will provide the competition in today's final round.

In the women's doubles final Grace Logie will be partnered by Berkeley's Arvilla McGuire as they attempt to lift the laurels in their match with Gwen Greenlee and June Crowe, a pair of Californians.

A successful tournament week will wind up this evening with a gala party in the clubhouse when members, contestants and guests will be entertained by the club.

Today's late draw follows: 5:30 p.m.—Mixed doubles final, Greenlee and Livingstone vs. Crowe and Hauptert.

5:30 p.m.—Veterans' singles final, Brand vs. John Edwards.

Aces, Vets Open Senior A Softball Playoffs Monday

A home run by Les Wilson with one on in the first half of the 10th inning, last night gave Brentwood Aces a 7 to 5 victory over Blue Bird Cubs and knocked the idle Douglas Tire nine out of the post-season senior A softball picture.

With the final two scheduled league games having no bearing on the order of finish, league officials announced following Aces' victory that the games would be canceled and playoffs would begin Monday. A benefit game in aid of the injured Barney Barnswell will be played at Central Park Sunday at 2:30, between Douglas Tire and the first-place finishers, Esquimalt Meat Market.

Best-of-three semifinal series between Army and Navy Vets and Aces will be played on Monday, Wednesday and Friday if necessary. Final best-of-five series between Esquimalt Meat and the winner of the semifinal round will start either Friday or Sunday depending on the length of the semifinal series.

Blue Birds came within an ace of upsetting the Brentwood nine and with a little better support in the field, hurler Fred Minnis would have knocked off the suburbanites.

After the cabmen had taken a 1 to 0 lead in the second inning, Aces forced to the front with two runs in the fourth. Blue Birds got one back in the fifth only to have winners tally a singleton in the sixth to lead, 3 to 2.

Two singles, a pair of stolen bases and a passed ball enabled Brentwood to increase their margin to 5 to 2 in the first of the eighth, but Blue Birds came back in their half of the frame to tie the score on Duncan's three-run homer. Wilson then broke up the tussle in the first extra inning.

IF AN ORCHID is ever handed out for Victoria's number one baseball fan it would certainly adorn the lapel of Mrs. Helen Harris, a grand little lady who has occupied a box seat at every home game the Athletics have played the last two seasons.

Come rain or shine this elderly woman can be seen every night seated in a box close to the Victoria dugout, where she keeps up a continual line of chatter with the members of the Athletics.

She is an out-and-out all-Victoria supporter and suffers plenty when her favorite A's go down to defeat. Mrs. Harris knows every member of the A's by his first name and plays no favorites.

"They're all a grand bunch of boys and are just like one big family to me," she said.

SEVERAL WEEKS ago Mrs.

Harris proved she is certainly no fair-weather fan. At this particular game play was suspended in the late innings owing to a heavy downpour of rain. Whereas the majority of the fans beat a hurried path for the covered section of the grandstand, Mrs. Harris just tucked a rug a little tighter around her legs and put up her umbrella. There she remained until the umpires decided to suspend play for the night.

DODO MCKAY LOSES

Dodo McKay, who ran up a sensational string of 16 consecutive victories for B.C. Forest Products in league play, last night lost his second straight game in the senior B playoff as the Forsters were beaten by Naval Stores, 6 to 5, in the third and deciding game of the semifinal series.

Naval Stores will now meet R.C.N.A.D., who took the measure of Superior Produce in three games, in the divisional final. R.C.N.A.D. defeated the produce dealers, 8 to 6, in the deciding tussle.

Loss of control in the eighth inning cost McKay his game. With his team leading, 5 to 3, and one man on by virtue of a single, McKay walked three men in succession to force in one run. Nelson then singled, driving in two runners "or" what proved to be the ball game. Lou McCorkall hurled R.C.N.A.D. to their win.

Hotshots squared their best of five junior girls' final by whipping Goblins, 13 to 8, in the second game of the series.

Don Harvey's senior B girls took their second straight game from J. H. and E., winning, 8 to 5, at Sidney.

Women's Softball

Next week's schedule for women's softball teams engaged in playoffs follows:

SENIOR A WOMEN
August 5—Hudson's Bay vs. Eagles, second game.
August 7—Eagles vs. Hudson's Bay, third game.

SENIOR B WOMEN
August 4—Don Harvey vs. J. H. & E., third game.
August 6—J. H. & E. vs. Don Harvey, fourth game if necessary.

JUNIOR GIRLS
August 6—Goblins vs. Goblins, third game.
August 8—Goblins vs. Hotshots, fourth game.
All series are best of five.

Woop Hurls 12th Win In Beating Spokane

A few more special nights and the Spokane Indians will find the foot of a new Western International League leader planted squarely in their face. A "Fullman Night" Friday at Spokane saw Victoria Athletics rise and smite the tribe 7 to 1 at the expense of Wally Kramer, former Washington State College star. The A's win behind the smart six-hit flinging of southpaw Bill Woop evened the series at a game apiece.

Just a week ago Tacoma turned the trick in setting back the front-runners, 4 to 3, on "Levi McCormack Night."

In registering his 12th mound win of the season Woop struck out five and walked four. After giving up the lone Spokane run in the first inning Woop was deadly the rest of the way. His teammates gave him a helping hand by pulling off three double plays. The Victoria club looked sharp after three spotty exhibitions earlier in the week.

HOOPER HITS HOMER

Victoria had little trouble solving Kramer's slants, jumping on him for 11 hits. Included in the bombardment were a home run and double by Johnny Hooper, doubles by Bill White and Babe Jensen and a triple by Johnny Cavalli. One of Victoria's two runs in the second inning came when Jensen made a clean steal of home.

Yesterday's loss cut the Indians' top-spot lead to a game and a half as the Bremerton Bluejackets opened a new home series with a 6 to 1 victory over the third-place Salem Senators, dropping the Oregonians two games below the runner-up position.

In second division encounters, Vancouver took a 2 to 1 bulge in its series with the Yakima Stars by winning 13 to 8, and Wenatchee's Chiefs opened their series in Tacoma with a 7 to 4 triumph over the Tigers.

Bremerton broke a 1 to 1 deadlock with Salem in the seventh on a three-run outburst climaxed by Hooks Devaur's triple, then added two more in the eighth for good measure when Bill Barisoff homered with a mate aboard. John Marshall hurled six-hit ball for the winners.

Vancouver followed the same pattern, scoring five runs in the seventh and eighth, innings against Yakima to break an 8 to 8 tie. Sandy Robertson, a local product, blanked the Stars in the last three frames after taking over in the sixth during a six-run spurge, four of which were walked in by starter Bob Hall.

Robertson virtually clinched his own game with a three-run circuit clout in the eighth. Frank Mullens and Leon Mohr also hit round-trippers for the Caps.

OUT OUR WAY

With The Lawn Bowlers

By TOM McKEACHIE

A full week of bowling, morning, afternoon and evening. That is in store for the bowlers and spectators commencing Monday, and following through to Saturday. All arrangements have been completed, with the official opening of Victoria's annual tournament set for 9 Monday at Beacon Hill greens.

Over 500 entries have been received for the various events, a good number of them being from out of town players, representing many cities of the Pacific Northwest.

The W. H. Cullen Trophy, for men's open-singles championship, has drawn a record entry of 108 players. In the men's doubles event, 114 pairs will be in quest of the F. S. Martin Cup, while the men's rinks will see 58 combinations after the Fort Garry Cup. The scene of these competitions will be Beacon Hill, Burnside and Lake Hill greens. Members of the fairer sex will take over at Canadian Pacific and Victoria West clubs.

Sixty ladies will be on hand for the ladies' open singles play. The George Strait Cup in the women's rinks event shows 33 entries, and twice that number will be vying for the W. & J. Wilson Cup in doubles.

Boat, Washer, Head Fish Derby Prizes

The finest and most expensive array of prizes to be placed at stake in 1947 salmon derbies sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association—$750 worth—has been selected by officials for the international derby to be held in Saanich Inlet Aug. 10.

The combination of Harry Woolston, president, and derby committee chairman George Mann, reported today the top attractions of the prize list are an electric washing machine and a 12-foot clinker-built boat with an outboard motor. The washer heads a four-prize consolation list, while the boat and outboard engine goes to the derbyist who places the heaviest salmon on the competition ladder.

Aim this year is to make the international classic not only the biggest fishfest of the year, but the No. 1 attraction in the 15-year history of the association.

A combination radio and phonograph, will go to the derbyist registering the second heaviest specimen. Third prize is a silver tea set and tray. A coffeemaker and a luggage traveling set are fourth and fifth prizes, respectively, a toastmaster the sixth and a special seventh is a novelty table. No. 2 on the consolation list is a mixer, third a Kenwood blanket and fourth an electric iron.

Wilson and Lenfesty's windows have been devoted for displaying the prizes. They were put in last night. Tickets are available from tackle stores, executive members and at the inlet boathouses.

Ted Fox returned from holidaying at Parksville bearing a picture of a handsome catch of springs going from small weights up to 15 pounds taken in three days of fishing by Mr. and Mrs. C. Utike, 52 Moss Street. Georgia View Auto Court's Don Hardy, said Fox, reports good catches have been the order for local and visiting fishermen. No. 4 Tom Mack spoons between 50 and 60 feet of caddyhunk and four ounces of weight being most successful.

OAK BAY COHO ARRIVE

There was plenty of excitement yesterday in the ranks of the city angling clan who like to comb the waters off Oak Bay when the first big 1947 run of coho made its appearance. They were first spotted by the lighthouse keeper and were jumping all over the waters off Trial Island and elsewhere off the shoreline.

And there were several anglers who sallied forth and made their efforts pay off with some good catches. Tops was the team of D. Smyth and G. W. Watson. Out at 6 in the morning, they took a basket of 13 with flasher and minnow. Young Keith Palmer scored a quartette. George Clegg took two, lost two others. There were other catches.

We are not going to stick our necks out and say the run is definitely on. Last year there was a "flash run."

SPRING AT COWICHAN

Cowichan Bay popped into the angling limelight this week with the arrival of a run of big size springs—ranging in the 20s to a high of 34 pounds Thursday evening. According to Capt. Don Peck best results are being secured in the morning—early, that is, in the neighborhood of 4—when fishing taking next honors. Plugs are popular, Tillamook and Sea Kings being used extensively, also No. 6 wonder all-silver spoons. Around 150 feet of line being used, four ounces for fire and six for caddyhunk. One of the best catches of the week was Seattle's Earl Jones, which included 20 to 25 pounds.

The trio of Bud Hocking, Bert Davies and Joe Doe took limits of grilse and bluebacks off Tumbo Island, near East Point, this midweek.

Big-fish catches in Saanich Inlet this week were on the slim side, but several big-numbers catches were scored, made up of smaller springs, coho and grilse.

A SILVER WINNER

Heading the parade of the week of inlet anglers was Bill Renfrew. He took a 31-pounder to the "cleaners" after a stiff battle. He landed the silver-button specimen off Christmas Point with a lucky louie plug, 250 feet of line and a small planer.

Sailors Bow To Pitzer And Nex; Negro Nine Coming

Driving starter Dick Barwis from the hill with a three-run outburst in the seventh inning and continuing their assault on little Jeff Worrell in the ninth, Rosy McLeellan's Pitzer and Nex baseball nine last night came from behind to defeat Navy, 6 to 3, in a senior amateur ball tilt.

Result leaves the gammen a game and a half ahead of the sailors in their fight for third place in the standings.

Navy started off in grand style, picking up single runs in the second, third and fourth innings off Al Turcotte. Meanwhile Barwis had his knuckleball working to perfection and for six innings stopped the eventual winners cold with two singles and one run.

Singles by Len Glancy, pinch-hitter Jim Wright, Glen Charlton and Bill Reynolds in the seventh frame were good for three runs. With one out Barwis retired in favor of Worrell, who retired the side. All three runs were charged to Barwis. Winners added two markers in the ninth on base hits by Wright, John and Reynolds.

League officials announced last night that Ford's California Tigers, Pacific Coast Negro baseball champions would appear here in a two-game exhibition series next week against a local all-star team under Bob Wiegand. Personnel of the local nine will be announced following a league meeting Sunday.

Tomorrow's game at Athletic Park will pit Pitzer and Nex against Duncan at 2.30.

Large Tuna Schools Running Close To Vancouver Island

A radio-telephone report of a large tuna school running as close as 12 miles off Sidney Inlet, near Clayoquot, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, was received by Louis Heggelund of Sooke, who arrived here Friday with 7,238 pounds of albacore tuna.

The fisherman, an ex-whaler, said high temperatures in offshore waters were responsible for the tuna schools running so close to Vancouver Island. He reported water temperature as ranging between 62 to 70 degrees 40 miles out to sea.

Approximately 1,000 fishing boats were engaged in tuna fishing, he said, and about half of these were Canadians.

"They are making record catches," he said. "I've seen nothing like it during my lifetime at sea."

Mr. Heggelund, who operates the Louvel II, described tuna as the most eccentric of all fishes. They either bit anything or nothing at all, and traveled at a great speed. He ran into a school of tuna but could not keep up with it with his boat which was doing six and one-half knots.

The fisherman also reported seeing bluelin tuna, sharks, a number of whales as well as other species of fish which are normally found in more southern waters.

There had been a number of minor accidents at sea, he said, which had occurred during the night. Some of the vessels had collided with each other, but had only suffered damage to their masts.

G. Godson, in his boat Alleyne, also arrived with a cargo of tuna Friday. He had 450 fish aboard which was unloaded at B.C. Packers.

"Wings over Jordan" choir gave demonstrations of their exceptional artistry to the patients on the two floors of the Victoria Veterans' Hospital Thursday.

Marked Increase In Licenses Issued For Motor Vehicles

A marked increase in the number of all types of licenses issued in B.C. under the Motor Vehicle Act for the first six months of this year, as compared to the number issued for a similar period in 1946, is shown in figures issued by the provincial government today.

Total number of vehicle licenses issued rose from 132,531 for the 1946 six-month period to 151,701 this year. Of the 1946 total, 100,102 licenses were for passenger motor vehicles and 32,429 for commercial vehicles. This year's total was made up of 111,939 passenger motor vehicle and 39,762 commercial vehicle licenses.

Motorcycle licenses rose from 2,367 to 3,290. Trailer licenses went up from 6,294 to 7,451. Transfer of licenses showed a sharp increase from 19,881 to 29,282.

For more drivers sought licenses. For the first six months of this year, 215,858 drivers secured licenses, as compared to 193,028 for the same period in 1946. Chauffeurs' licenses rose from 30,320 to 37,377.

Figures for June alone showed increases consistent with those for the six month period.

Total number of motor vehicle licenses issued rose from 2,456 to 3,769; passenger motor vehicle licenses increasing from 1,595 to 2,451 and commercial vehicle licenses moving up from 861 to 1,318. Number of motorcycle licenses issued rose from 154 to 256, while those for trailers increased from 638 to 764.

Transfers showed a heavy increase. June, 1946, transfers totaled 4,515 as compared with this June's total of 7,322.

Scout Returns From Long Olympic Hike

Sixteen-year-old William "Bill" Hurst, 1321 Johnson Street, returned to Victoria Friday following a 10-day hike through the scenic Olympic Mountains with a party of 10 Canadians and American Boy Scouts. The Boys hiked more than 100 miles.

Young Hurst, an assistant scout master of the Third Victoria Scout Troop and troop leader of the Lions' Own Senior Scout Troop, was one of two scouts from British Columbia to make the trip. The other was Robert Rutter of Vancouver.

"It was a great trip," says Bill, "and my feet aren't even sore."

Damaged Freighter Makes Port; To Return To Service In 10 Days

The C.P.R. freighter Nootka, damaged last Tuesday when she struck a reef in a dense fog at Quatsino Sound, arrived with a cargo of lumber in Vancouver at 5 this morning under her own power, Capt. O. J. Williams, manager of the C.C. Coast Service, reported here today. She was conveyed by the Salvage Chieftain.

The ship was not seriously damaged, he said, and she was expected to be back into service in a week or 10 days following repairs. He was unable to say whether the ship would be repaired in Vancouver or Victoria.

Capt. Williams said divers made temporary repairs to the vessel which was holed when she struck the reef. The crew had plugged the hole and reinforced the ship's plates. Pumps cast the surplus waters out.

If the ship had been badly damaged, Capt. Williams said, it would have been a serious blow to west coast trade as the freighter was used to transport lumber and fish as well as general cargo to and from isolated Vancouver Island points.

600 Veterans Still Seek Homes

With five or six new applications for emergency housing coming before the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council daily from veterans, there appears to be no improvement in Victoria's housing situation, A. Palmer, executive secretary of the council, said today.

At the present time the office has almost 600 applications on file from veterans for housing, he said, and for every one coming off the list because he finds accommodation for himself, two new ones go on.

For the past 12 months the situation has shown no signs of getting any better, Mr. Palmer said.

Work is progressing on conversion of Gordon Head camp as quickly as possible, although workmen are held up temporarily awaiting a shipment of gyproc for partitions, he said. Twenty men are on the conversion job, working under the supervision of the city building department. There are 41 families now in residence there.

The turnover of tenants in the converted huts at Macaulay, Tillicum and Moresby House is very small, Mr. Palmer said. There is a faster turnover at Balmoral House where the rooms are limited and no playground facilities are available for the children.

Government House, Civic Receptions For British Cadets

Arrangements have been completed to entertain 46 British air cadets and seven R.A.F. and R.C. A.F. officers when they arrive at Patricia Bay Aug. 7 on their trans-Canada tour. The group arrived in Montreal by R.A.F. transport this week and has already begun the journey to western Canada.

The cadets on their arrival at Patricia Bay next Thursday at 5 p.m. will be welcomed by Group Capt. F. R. West, commanding officer of the R.C.A.F. station, and Mayor Percy George. Following a dinner they will be shown a moving picture on the station. On Friday they will leave via Brentwood for Youbou where they will be shown logging operations and given a lunch arranged by H. R. McMillan. At 2 p.m. they will leave Youbou and the party will stopover on the Malahat before proceeding to Macaulay Camp.

At Government House at 5.15 p.m. the cadets will be the guests of Lieutenant-Governor C. A. Banks. Following the reception they will tour the city, and at 6.30 p.m. will attend a civic reception at the Douglas Hotel.

In the evening they will tour the city in private cars before returning to Patricia Bay for 10 p.m. They will leave for Vancouver Saturday morning.

Sets Record In July

Attendance at the Provincial Museum reached record proportions in July, it was reported at the Legislative Buildings today.

While actual registration of more than 7,300 visitors is only slightly greater than last year, the estimated attendance is 13,000 for the month, more than 2,000 greater than for July, 1946. Majority of those registering are visitors to the city, reflecting the general increase in tourists visiting here this season.

284 Lions Clubmen Visiting Victoria Today And Sunday

More than 200 members of Lions International from clubs throughout central, eastern and southern states of the U.S., arrived in Victoria at 1.25 today from Seattle for a short afternoon visit.

The visitors are delegates of the 30th annual international convention of Lions held in San Francisco July 28 to 31 who are seeing the Pacific Northwest before returning to their homes.

They had lunch at the Empress Hotel and then went shopping and sightseeing.

With the Lions is the 48-piece girls' Scottish highland pipe band of the University of Iowa. The band represented the state of Iowa at the Lions convention and won first prize in the band competition there.

Before returning to school, members of the band will make a 5,000-mile tour through the United States and Canada under the sponsorship of Towas Lions clubs.

Members of the band are garbed in traditional highland dress.

Sunday, 84 Lions from eastern Canada will arrive in this city en route home.

Members of the Victoria Lions Club have arranged to take these visitors to a luncheon at The Ranch, Cordova Bay, and later to a picnic at the Dominion Experimental Station, Saanichton.

$750 In Jewels, Cash Missing From Home

Diamond rings and unset diamonds valued at $650 and $106 in cash have been reported missing from the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Smith, 1169 Yates Street. Detective Wm. Richards is in charge of the investigation.

Reports of the missing jewelry and money reached the police yesterday and after making a survey of the home Detective Richards said there was no sign whatsoever of entry. The missing items are two diamond one and one-half carat rings worth $250 each, two unset diamonds valued at $150 and $106 in bills.

Mrs. Smith reported that these were kept in the bottom of a large vase which stands on the mantel-piece in the dining-room.

Detective Richards advised the couple to make a thorough search of their home in case the missing articles had been misplaced. Mrs. Smith told the detective that she last saw the jewelry and money July 22.

275 Wartime Houses For Sale Monday

Esquimalt wartime houses, constructed during the war to house war-workers, will go on sale Monday, the Esquimalt Dockyard Branch No. 172 of the Canadian Legion was notified today by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

There are 275 of these homes and the company's message stated all will be put on the sale list other than staff houses. However, if the present tenants do not wish to buy, they can remain on as long as they pay the rent.

Orange Prices Up

Orange prices, which jumped 50 cents a case last week, were boosted again today with increases ranging from 20 to 25 cents a case.

Reason for this latest increase is the import duty of 70 cents a case which became effective Friday.

"We will not add on the whole of the duty until we have to," one Victoria wholesaler commented.

Dumping duties have been imposed on imported cantaloupes. Prices on this fruit have been declining and wholesalers were expecting them to hit a low next week. The new duties, however, will keep the price about the same as it is now.

Poor Facilities For Private Craft In Harbor Cause Concern

Question of accommodation for pleasure craft visiting Victoria to tie up in the Inner Harbor is beginning to concern both harbor authorities and local organizations.

Ald. F. N. Cabellu, member of the city harbor committee, said the question of the use of the city floats had been called to his attention and he would bring it up at the next meeting of the harbor committee, which is under the chairmanship of Ald. W. L. Morgan. Ald. Morgan was out of town today and could not be reached for comment.

It has been stated that fishing and commercial boats are monopolizing the city floats in the Inner Harbor to the extent that private yachts visiting the city cannot find a place to berth. Ald. Cabellu said he did not know who was responsible for seeing to it that the float is reserved for its proper use but he intended to have the matter investigated.

Some time ago diagrams were submitted to the harbor committee which called for the extension of the Causeway into the harbor for berthing of boats. The city engineer was asked to prepare an estimate of costs for the project, for submission to the federal authorities. To date no such estimate has been presented.

The Chamber of Commerce harbor committee is also reported to be worried about the lack of accommodation for boats, both here and at other points where it has been stated people are living in boats and tying up the space so that visiting boats cannot find a place to berth.

LANDING STAGE NEEDED

Dr. G. W. C. Bissett, commodore of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, explained that visiting yachtsmen were not so much concerned with finding a place to tie up their boats, as with obtaining landing stage facilities.

"O greatest interest to visiting yachtsmen would be the dredging of the Inner Harbor," he commented. "It is sitting up badly and is quite shallow. The majority of yachtsmen don't moor at a dock but throw out an anchor in the middle of the harbor, coming in to land in dinghies."

He commented that it was often difficult for them to find landing accommodation or a place to leave their small boats while they visited the city. He felt the city float in front of the Empress Hotel on the Causeway should be reserved for landing purposes only.

Warrior Carrying Boys To Britain

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada's capital ship, the aircraft carrier Warrior, slipped her lines at 11.05 a.m. today and moved down the harbor for the open sea, bound for the United Kingdom.

Besides her regular complement she carries 35 Canadian Boy Scouts going to the sixth International Boy Scout Jamboree at Moissan, France, and 25 sea cadets, headed for a tour of England.

The Warrior will return to Halifax in about two weeks and then will sail for Britain to remain in the British navy. She is to be replaced by the aircraft carrier Magnificent, now nearing completion at Belfast.

Members of Naval Air Arm Squadrons 803 and 825 aboard the Warrior will join the Magnificent soon after the carrier reaches the Clyde, in about four days.

AUTHENTIC TALE

"The Smackmen," by George Goldsmith Carter (Longmans' Green & Co.)

A SIMPLE TALE of three generations of East Anglian fishermen which has an authentic flavor, told in the language of the fisherfolk which gradually gets the reader's interest and holds it to the end. This is George Goldsmith Carter's second book, the first being "Looming Lights," a story of light ships during World War II.

There is no complicated plot to this book. It relates in careful detail the life, at home and at sea, of the fishermen of the Borough. The Turnbull and Ropnar families are the main characters, and so real are they that the reader feels they are people from life rather than story-book characters.

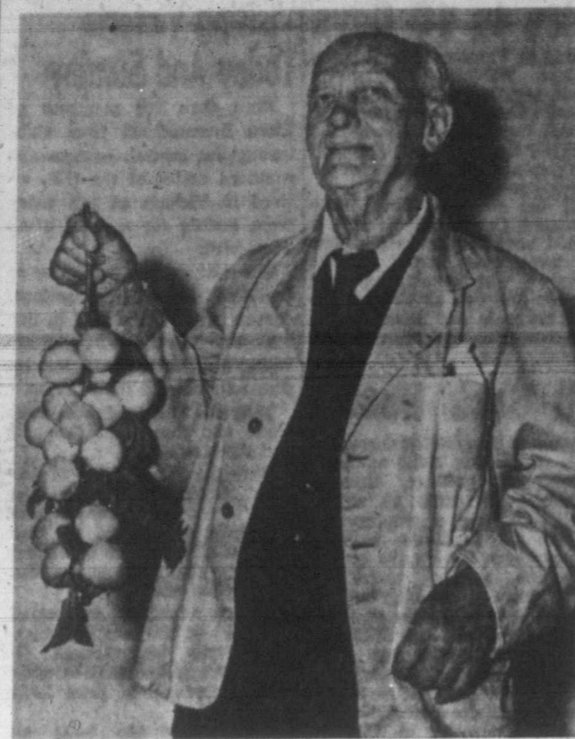

The life of the smackmen is so unrelated to anything the Western Canadian knows that it takes some difficulty to visualize, although it is apparent that the author is thoroughly at home with his characters.

To aid the uninitiated he gives a glossary of the technical terms and slang used in the speech of the fishermen. Without it the reader would be quite lost for long passages of conversation.

He has drawn deeply from the well of folk stories and fishermen's legends to give the conversation of his fishermen over their inevitable pot of ale, or at their many tasks aboard the little fishing boat the authentic flavor that is much of the book's charm.

Actually the tale could serve as a history of the trawling industry, starting with the Iceland smackmen, and ending with the crews of the modern steam trawlers in the period of the middle 1920's. It has laughter and pathos, excitement and contentment. A book well worth the reading.

HOW TO ROB A BANK
"Bank Frauds" by Lester A. Pratt (Ronald Press).

THERE ARE 210 ways to steal money from a bank without using either gun or dynamite. Bank officials and employees get away with $2,000,000 to $6,000,000 in the United States every year. Fraud occurs most frequently in banks with four to 10 employees. Something ought to be done about it. And bank directors are just the ones who ought to do it. These are the conclusions of a prominent sleuth of banking frauds, Lester A. Pratt, certified public accountant of Washington, D.C.

He lists the 210 ways of defrauding a bank in a book—"Bank Frauds"—and explains in detail just how each fraud is worked.

In it he emphasizes that almost all are caught—30 per cent with-

In a year, 50 per cent within two years, 65 per cent within three years, and only "the exceptional" in more than 10 years.

Pratt's idea is not to furnish a handbook for anyone coveting some of his bank's cash. On the contrary, his idea is the detection and prevention of bank frauds. And that's where he ties into bank directors.

Theirs is the responsibility of seeing that officers and employees co-operate to deter fraud, says Pratt. They have a moral obligation to protect employees from temptation and a legal liability for negligence.

Book Notes

Pietro di Donato's 1939 best seller, "Christ in Concrete," will be made into a film by Rod E. Geiger, the ex-soldier, who imported the Italian film, "Open City" to this continent.

Alva Johnston's thumbnail biography of Erle Stanley Gardner, "The Case of Earle Stanley Gardner," published by McClelland and Stewart, is as entertaining as Mr. Gardner's prolific output under several pen-names.

Haas Fires 66 To Grab Lead In St. Paul Golf

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—An iron game that approached perfection rocketed Fred Haas, New Orleans, unattached professional, to a six-under-par 66 Friday and a 36-hole total of 135 in the St. Paul Open golf tournament.

Haas' 66 put him in the lead of a brigade of professionals and amateurs that made something of a mockery of par 72 for the 6,432-yard Keller municipal course.

South Africa's Bobby Locke was well down among the low 25 scorers, but still only seven strokes behind Haas. Locke added a 70 to his first-round 72 for a total of 142.

Pushing Haas for the lead were Lew Worsham, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Jim Ferrier of Chicago. The two professionals, who carded 69's in the first round, came in with 67's yesterday for 36-hole totals of 136. Just one stroke behind them was Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, Fla. professional, who had a 69 yesterday to go with his 68 Thursday for 137.

Another five-under par 67 was turned in by John Barnum, Chicago amateur. Barnum had a 71 Thursday, giving him 138.

Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., who led the first round of play with a 67, slipped to par figures yesterday for 139.

Wide Basis For Japanese Treaty Seen By Evatt During Visit

TOKYO (AP)—Deputy Prime Minister Herbert V. Evatt sailed for home today aboard the Australian cruiser Hobart after a fact-finding visit to Japan.

Before leaving he issued a statement saying there was "a very substantial area of agreement with leading United States authorities in Japan on the major issues" in the writing of a peace treaty with Japan.

"There is," he continued, "a wide acceptance of Australia's view that a peace settlement should be negotiated along democratic lines, giving all 11 victorious Allied nations in the Pacific war the right of full participation in the settlement, and also join the machinery for the subsequent supervision of the peace settlement."

Evatt's statement expressed belief the Japanese peace treaty could be completed "at a comparatively early date, and the necessary machinery of peacetime supervision by Allied nations successfully launched" if sufficient "drive and determination" were shown.

Chemical Causes Stubborn Soo Fire

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Explosion of a chemical known as D-sulf-X was blamed today for the $100,000 fire which destroyed the experimental plant of the Chromium Mining and Smelting Corporation Friday. Before being isolated by the quick action of firemen, the spectacular blaze threatened the corporation's main plant and caused extensive damage to nearby homes and business establishments.

"It was impossible to put the fire out because the chemical burns in water and all we could do was prevent the fire from spreading," Fire Chief W. J. Phillip said.

Several persons narrowly escaped injury and two were saved from possible death. Mrs. Wes Verboil, trapped in her apartment when flames roared around both exits, was rescued by her husband, and three-year-old Tommy Yukosovich, who tripped fleeing from the scene of the explosion, was carried to safety by two older playmates.

David Hill, one of the men working in the plant at the time, escaped through a side door before the building was consumed in flames. "The heat was so terrific it was almost unbearable," Hill said.

Of great importance to Vancouver Island commercial poultrymen is the installation, in our new Farm & Garden Supply Store, of an ultra-modern Egg Plant, complete with cold storage and grading facilities. It is our expectation that egg handling facilities of this order will ensure retention of the Victoria metropolitan market for Victoria and Island eggs. It is also our hope that production will increase so that this area will participate in production for the huge British overseas market, where eggs are so badly needed.

Disappointments For Hollywood Visitors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—So you want to spend your vacation in Hollywood? Better think it over.

Licence plates from most states and provinces of North America can be found in Hollywood streets these warm days and the town is overflowing with tourists. Many are doomed for disappointment.

Let us cite the imaginary case of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klump of Passaic, N.J. The Klumps drive to downtown Hollywood and are surprised to find it looks not unlike Passaic. Except for some fancy health food and brasserie shops, it resembles any normal business district. The four corners of fabled Hollywood and Vine boast merely a drugstore, a bank, a restaurant and a department store.

Movie making requires silence and privacy, and the Klumps would have to be no less than Louis B. Mayer's godparents to gain admission to a set.

So our visitors decide they would settle for the mere sight of a movie star. They buy a map and make a tour of the stars' homes, but all of the occupants remain indoors. They eat at one of the swank restaurants, and Henry becomes slightly ill when he receives the cheque. About the nearest they come to seeing celebrities is viewing the cement footprints at Grauman's Theatre.

But—test the picture—appear too dismal, I should point out other sights readily available to the Klumps—orange groves, the Mexican quarter at Olvera Street, Griffith Park planetarium, drive-in restaurants, Sunset Strip shops, Labrea tar pits, the beaches, the county museum and Marie Wilson in "Blackouts."

Where To Go Tonight

ATLAS—Douglas Fairbanks in "Sinbad the Sailor."

CAPITOL—Living in a Big Way, starring Gene Kelly and Marie Kelly.

DOMINION—"Alexander's Ragtime Band," with Tyrone Power and Alice Faye.

OAK BAY—Robert Montgomery in "Race in Heaven."

PLAZA—Jon Hall and Rita Johnson in "Michigan Kid."

RIO—"House on 92nd Street," starring Lloyd Nolan.

ROYAL—Cornel Wilde and Maureen O'Hara in "The Homestretch."

YORK—William Powell and Esther Williams in "The Hoodlum Saint."

ROYAL THEATRE
Cornel Wilde and Maureen O'Hara are teamed for the first time on the screen in Twentieth Century-Fox's new technicolor hit, "The Homestretch," which is currently at the Royal Theatre.

The film, which unfolds a drama of thrills and romance against the background of the horse racing world, presents Wilde as a reckless spendthrift who dreams of owning a stable of racing champions, while Miss O'Hara is the girl who is caught in the whirl of his hazardous plans—romantic and otherwise.

ATLAS THEATRE
Twenty-five glamorous blondes were selected from 250 applicants for the roles of wives and slaves in RKO Radio's lavish new technicolor spectacle, "Sinbad the Sailor," now at the Atlas Theatre, starring Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Maureen O'Hara and Walter Slezak. Anthony Quinn in his role of Oriental potentate is the lucky possessor of these models of pulchritude.

OAK BAY THEATRE
M-G-M's thrilling psychological drama, "Race in Heaven," makes a triumphant return to the Oak Bay screen with Ingrid Bergman and Robert Montgomery in two of the greatest roles of their respective careers as the woman tortured by her husband's growing insanity and the husband driven to a diabolical crime because of a twisted mind.

CAPITOL THEATRE
Hugs-kicking Gene Kelly is back on the screen to resume the career which was interrupted by his three years in the United States navy. The popular dancing star makes his return with luscious Marie "The Body" McDonald in M-G-M's rollicking comedy of postwar complications, "Living in a Big Way," now being shown at the Capitol Theatre. Kelly does plenty of dancing in the new picture.

DOMINION THEATRE
Acclaimed as "the champion musical of all time," Irving Berlin's "Alexander's Ragtime Band," starring Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche and Ethel Merman, is back by popular demand for an encore engagement at the Dominion Theatre. The stirring musical drama has a score of 28 Irving Berlin's all-time hits.

Jon Hall makes his first screen appearance since his return from army service; Rita Johnson, erstwhile hard-hearted heroine goes softly romantic for the first time in many pictures roles, and Andy Devine is seen in his initial debut as a movie badman in Rex Beach's "Michigan Kid." Universal frontier saga, filmed in cinecolor, now showing at the Plaza Theatre

Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp Opens Monday

A swimming raft at Glinz Lake is prepared.

First of the Y.M.C.A.'s three week-long camps at Camp Thunderbird, Glinz Lake, will be held starting Monday.

The camp site itself covers 320 acres of wooded land at an elevation of 1,000 feet and contains excellent swimming facilities in the 15-acre lake.

Arnold Ramer, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., has announced enrollment for the first camping period is complete, but there are still vacancies for the second and third periods.

Boys are checked by a doctor before going to camp. Meals are prepared by a capable cook under direction of a dietitian.

Woodlore, campcraft, first aid, life saving, leather work, splicing, braiding and wood carving will be taught at the camp by the "Y's" capable staff.

Keith Darbyson, director; Percy Riddle, program and hobbies; Jim McKellar, aquatic; Jim Taylor, program and maintenance, and Mrs. Doreen Richards, camp cook and first aid, are staff members. Through the assistance of the Optimist Club, the camp site has been improved considerably this year. Cabins have been rebuilt and steel beds and springs with mattresses installed.

Tyee Competitions Open At Port Alberni

Up Alberni way things are all set for the annual tyee competition season in the canal waters. Qualifying rounds open tomorrow with a prize list for that day. During the qualifying period, which ends on Saturday, Oct. 4, competitions will be held weekly.

Grand final derby day of the season will be Sunday, Oct. 5, in which the 50 anglers who weigh in the heaviest fish during the qualifying season will be eligible to compete.

When August 24 arrives on the calendar, the Port Alberni Tyee Club will sponsor the junior derby, a big success last year, starting at 7 in the morning. August 31 has been set aside for a derby that is open to the public. All fishing in club promotions must be done according to club tackle restrictions. Prizes will be awarded for the weekly and special event.

The DOCTOR Says:

WOMEN STAND THE HEAT BETTER THAN MEN

By WILLIAM A. O'BRIEN, M.D.

Women are superior to men in their ability to stand heat and cold. The temperature of a woman's skin is higher than that of a man's and she perspires less. In cold weather the extra pad of fat under the skin helps her to conserve body heat.

In both men and women 95 per cent of body heat is lost through transfer (conduction, radiation, convection) and by evaporation of water from the lungs and skin to surrounding atmosphere. Other channels include raising the inspired air to body temperature and warming the excreta and other body wastes.

Every 24 hours the body must lose as much heat as it generates or fever will result. In hot weather high temperature of air, moisture in the atmosphere, character and amount of clothing, and the amount of heat manufactured by the body, interferes with heat loss.

Sweating cools the body through evaporation, but it also robs the body of salt and water. Contrary to popular belief, sweat is mainly a dilute solution of salt and water rather than impurities and waste.

Evaporation of water from the body may occur even in the absence of sweating. Persons who are light sweaters keep cool from seepage of water and salt through the outer skin layers. A study of individuals born without sweat glands showed that a fairly large amount of evaporation could occur in this way.

Heat loss from the body is aided by air currents playing over the skin surface. Recent reports showed that heat stroke could occur at fairly low temperatures (70 deg. Fahrenheit) if the air was humid and air currents could not reach body surface. So health authorities recommend wearing just a few clothes as possible during extremely hot weather.

WATER, SALT NEEDED
Drinking large quantities of water will replace the fluid which was lost, but salt is also needed. Even though women have more efficient heat regulating systems than men, they also take advantage of ways and means which help them to be more comfortable in hot weather: light-weight, non-constricting clothing, for instance.

QUESTION—Do you think a person is mentally ill who is so unreasonable with his wife that when her life was at stake he persisted in causing her trouble?

ANSWER—Patients with mental illness can develop personality changes in which those who previously were easy to get along with became difficult. In other cases it is simply lack of control.

U.S. Congressmen Support Olympiad

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States congressmen took issue today with the suggestion that the 1948 Olympics in Britain should be canceled on the grounds that well-fed American athletes will hold an edge over those from food-scarce countries.

A survey among some of the lawmakers lingering after adjournment produced general accord on this point:

The good will of international sports competition will triumph over possible protests of "unfairness" in the event of an American sweep of the Olympics.

And there was general agreement, too, that the United States Olympic committee should arrange for all contestants to eat at equal levels both during the games and for a pre-games training period. The committee plans to take along a larger of meat and other food items scarce in Britain.

The congressional views were touched off by suggestions in the

Reich's Pair Of Home Runs Whip Seattle Ball Club

Bob Chesnes, the San Francisco Seals' pitching beauty, was still nursing a sore arm today—and a headache to boot after his third shellacking by the Pacific Coast League-leading Los Angeles Angels.

The condition of the young right-hander became a matter of genuine concern as the Angels rapped him for seven hits and four runs in five innings to take an easy 8 to 2 verdict. It was Chesnes' first start in nearly two weeks and his seventh defeat against 17 wins.

He has beaten the Angels only once. Last night, the Seraphs, led by Eddie Sauer's three doubles and two singles in five trips, teed off for a total of 17 hits, including 10 off lefty Bill Werle, Chesnes' successor. Angel Bill Fleming breezed to victory.

The Angels boosted their lead to five games as Oakland fell, 8 to 5, before Hollywood.

Herman Reich's two circuit blasts, each with one runner on, presented Portland with a 4 to 3 squeak over Seattle. The second one came in the ninth and gave Jake Moity the nod over Walt Dubiel, who went the distance for the Rainiers.

San Diego's rugged right-hander, Al Treichel, chalked up his 12th win, mowing down the Sacramento Solons with six hits and fanning five in a 13 to 1 romp.

Life Of Soldier In Palestine Monotonous
VANCOUVER (CP)—A special "dispatch" from Palestine arrived here Friday and its theme was not horror and tragedy but a plaintive tale of the "loneliness and monotony" of a British soldier's life there.

Five young members of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders sent a letter to the mayor's office here asking for feminine correspondents to cheer their "lonesome" days in the strife-ridden land.

Thrift Aroused Suspicion
NEW YORK (CP)—J. F. Taggard was back at his job as assistant civil engineer in this city's building department today after an inquiry which showed that a thrifty wife, not an itching palm, was responsible for his bank account. Taggard was suspended from his $4,130-a-year job last June after investigation showed $5,100 had been deposited in two bank accounts he shared with his wife, Margaret, between July, 1945, and May, 1946.

PRISCILLA'S POP
If I could do it over again I'd be a farmer! That's the life!
Don't be so sure, Wanda. I hear they have to be up at dawn to feed the cows and pigs.
Well, I'd soon put an end to that nonsense!
After all, we broke the children of their 6 a.m. bottles, didn't we?

CHICAGO (AP)—Corn rolled ahead into new high territory again today on the board of trade, sustained by persistent commission house buying which met a general scarcity of offerings. The yellow grain strength helped oats, but wheat lagged on hedge selling.

All corn contracts established new seasonal highs before profit-taking reduced best gains late in the day.

Wins Scholarship . . . Miss Rita Nevard has been awarded the Forristal-Weldon scholarship for $300 at Music Teachers College, University of Western Ontario, for the coming year. Miss Nevard, who is well known in musical circles in Victoria, was awarded the Archie-Wyatt scholarship last year and in recent university examinations received an award in English which she will receive in the fall convocation. At present she is holidaying in Victoria with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Nevard, Cochrane Street, and will return east in September to continue her studies.

Toronto Visitor . . . Mrs. Murray R. Mark, a visitor from Toronto, will spend the rest of the summer in Victoria, the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Applegate, 326 Arnold Avenue. Mrs. Mark, the former Miss Winnifred Applegate, will be remembered in musical circles in Victoria as an outstanding vocalist. Before her marriage she studied at the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

Family Reunion . . . From San Francisco has come Mrs. D. J. McBrady, the former Miss Kezia Sehl, top right, to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Sehl, 2411 Wark Street. She is accompanied by her children, Mary Elizabeth and Daniel. The McBradys will be visitors in Victoria until the end of August. . . . Also guests of her parents is Mrs. J. W. McConnell, the former Miss Marguerite Sehl, with her children, Joan and James. The McConnells moved from Victoria to Steveston, B.C., early in April.

Guadalcanal—5 Years After

Solomon Island native carefully tends grave of GIs buried at Lunga Cemetery. If these bodies are returned to the States, the jungle will overrun even this small area. Then its victory will be complete.

GUADALCANAL—The Battle of Guadalcanal is nearly over. The final winner will be the jungle.

Already the jungle has reclaimed most of the precious land U.S. Marines wrested from it and the Japanese when they landed there five years ago, on Aug. 7, 1942.

The U.S. offensive against the jungle ended simultaneously with the signing of peace with the Japanese in Tokyo. From that time on, U.S. forces left on the island fought a delaying action against the encroaching, innocent looking morning glories and passion flower vines that were the shock troops of denser vegetation. Occupation forces wanted time to wind up the dismantling of extensive bases, time to get men and equipment off the island.

They moved quickly, but the jungle moved faster. The perimeter of the malaria control area was the new battleline. When the Japanese surrendered, this covered its biggest area, 22 miles long, five miles deep from the coastline. It included three bomber and two fighter fields, hospitals, depots, repair yards, ports and a cemetery.

As the jungle moved in, and troops retreated home to peace, the perimeter narrowed. Two bomber bases went back to the jungle. Green crawled through and over the marston mats of the fields and termites began their slow but definite job of chopping down the control towers, silver by silver.

By the beginning of 1946, what U.S. property was left was entrusted to Col. Robert G. Howie of the army, 14 other officers and 97 men and a Fijian dock company of 318 men and 12 British officers. They loaded surplus equipment at a feverish pace whenever a ship reached the island.

Last February, most of the valuable surplus property had been shipped out and the last U.S. army maintenance unit withdrew.

Today, the malaria perimeter has closed in even more tightly. It barely extends beyond the cemetery at Lunga where a thousand Marines, a thousand sailors and 1,400 soldiers are buried. Not all of these died at Guadalcanal. Many were removed from graveyards in the New Hebrides and from other islands in the Solomons.

A Graves Registration Service unit under the army's quartermaster general now is carefully checking identification of the bodies at Lunga in preparation for shipping them to the United States for reburial. If 70 per cent of the relatives of the dead request that individual bodies be shipped home, the rest may be returned by administrative order and the cemetery closed.

The jungle's victory over the U.S. then will be complete. The green will take over the land and the swifts and swallows will take over the air. Sharks will roam at will through the quiet waters off Savo Island, through Iron Bottom Bay, graveyard of many a Japanese and U.S. warship.

Politically, the British now are administering the island and others in the chain. Not so worried about either the jungle or malaria, they set up their headquarters outside the perimeter, in a grove between Point Cruz and the Kokumbona River. In a quiet cove nearby, easily seen from the terrace of the British Officers' Club, are occasional inter-island boats, the nearest thing to a peacetime Solomon navy.

Battle Scars: This wrecked Jap ship was sunk on beach at Guadalcanal during early action in the war. Now vegetation has replaced Marines, birds rule the sky, and fish swim quietly in Iron Bottom Bay.

Faulty Pruning May Stop Climbing Roses Blooming

CLIMBING ROSES

During the past two months many gardeners have complained that their climbing roses have not bloomed this year. The only reason why they would not do so is because some error has unintentionally been made in the pruning. However, since there are three distinct types of climbing roses, and their pruning practice varies, it is so easy to make a mistake in the timing or system that should be used.

Like Ruth Alexander or Reviel Dijonais, with one flower to a stem, similar to the Hybrid Tea Bush roses. The pruning of the climbers is a little different from the bush roses, but not much. As soon as any flower or cluster of flowers is over, it should be cut back to within a couple of inches to where it joins the main cane.

In summer, new strong, long canes are formed. These should be trained to the place where they are wanted, while they are growing. After the rose has a sufficient quantity of canes, the new ones should still be encouraged, but one of the old ones should be removed to make way for each new, strong, lusty one. The actual pruning of the climbers should be done during the last two weeks of January. At this time remove all unwanted growth. There is no method of picturing how climbers should be pruned because the top growth is trained in so many different ways. All there is to remember is that the new buds are forced into almost instant action right after pruning is done and it is from these growths that the flower stems come.

RAMBLERS

Paul's Scarlet is the best known of the rambler group. This rose produces long, thin canes, incapable of self-support. They are the trellis-roses or the ones used on pergolas. The canes often reach a length of 20 to 25 feet. The flowers are small and are in clusters. The rambler's flowers appear at one time in June and July. The plants are hardy and if they are hybrids containing R. wichuraiana "blood," they are very resistant to disease. The waxy leaves resist the entrance of disease organisms.

The climbers produce, their flowers on second-year wood and, consequently, they should be pruned off after flowering in July. All the flowering canes should be removed. They are cut off at the ground level or near that level. This leaves the new canes that will flower the following year. Weak canes are a detriment to the plant and should be removed. The plants should be limited to five or seven strong canes.

PILLAR TYPE

One of the best known and constant winners is the Lemon Pillar. This class is often considered as a part of the climber group, but is quite different in stature and should have consideration under a separate class name. The pillar roses are tall, upright plants made up of strong canes reaching six or more feet in height. They usually need no support. For garden specimens, a stake is commonly used to ensure an upright habit and prevent injury by wind. The flowers are produced in clusters and in general are larger than those of the climber or rambler rose. The plants are hardy and quite disease resistant.

The flowers are produced on second-year wood. Pruning is, therefore, done after flowering in the same manner as in the rambler rose. Flowering canes are cut to the ground, leaving the new growth that will flower the following year. The plant is of a vigorous type and from seven to 10 strong canes may be left as wood for next year's flowering.

SPIT BUG

This name is very appropriately given to a variety of aphid which, when it alights on a plant, immediately settles itself in a convenient "crotch" to suck the plant's juices. It then covers itself with a foamy, frothy substance which gives the pest its name.

It's this froth or foam that is the insect's perfect protection against all its natural enemies, including man.

The pest appears on very many garden plants and particularly on strawberries, pinks, carnations, columbine, chrysanthemums and many other "soft" plants.

The simplest way to eliminate them when the infestation is not extreme, is to pinch off each "gob" of foam with the fingers, killing the insect at the same time.

When the infestation is quite heavy, a good method, used by many gardeners, is to "wash" off the foam and spray at once—before the pest has a chance to make more "spit"—with a good contact insecticide. Washing first is generally necessary because most sprays are unable to penetrate the foam and reach the insect.

Several recent reports state that D.D.T. has been used successfully (without first washing) and it is believed that D.D.T. has a penetrating property which reaches the pest through the foam. Many tests are being made this year to determine if this is a fact, but it is certainly worth trying.

WHEN PICKING BERRIES

It is a wise practice to sort the berries when they are picked in the home garden. Carry several small boxes in a basket or tray and grade the berries when they are picked. This saves double handling and fruit won't mush. The very largest berries may be used as fresh fruit or they are fine for canning. Those that are to be put in the frozen locker should be picked right into the containers in which they will remain.

The smaller fruits are generally used for jams or jellies and are considered superior for this purpose on account of their rich flavor. After all the good, ripe berries have been picked, it is wise to spare a few minutes to go over the rows again and carefully remove all damaged or shrivelled fruits. Most of the pests which attack berries are found right inside the fruit at picking time, especially maggot, thrip and mites. If all bad fruit is carefully removed at picking time, and destroyed, the pests which might be a worse nuisance next year, are destroyed.

Many varieties of raspberries are able to produce the fall fruits, including the Lloyd George, but most successful of course are the "Fall" varieties Indian Summer and St. Regis.

This is what's behind those CHEVRON SIGNS

Lots of folks are curious about the new Chevron Gas Stations. So here are the answers to the questions you've been asking—the story of how Standard of B.C. is helping us establish our identity as independent merchants.

No, when the Chevron sign goes up over a gas station it doesn't mean that the station has changed hands. The new name, the new paint job are just to establish it as an independent business.

Lots of motorists who like the personal service they get at independent gas stations don't always know they are locally-owned. We're taking this means of making the fact plain to folks around here.

You bet we will continue to handle Standard products. We want to offer our customers the finest. Our service and accessories will be just the same, too.

Sure, Chevron Gas Stations honor Standard of B.C. Credit Cards. And they're mighty handy when you come in for Chevron Gasolines, RPM Motor Oil and other products and services. Just drop in any time.

Europe Better, Doesn't Know It Nature Talks

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEW YORK—The pessimists think Europe is dying, but she is really getting better and doesn't know it yet.

That is the clinical report of Harry A. Bullis, a top American food man who has just taken the food pulse of eight European countries. His diagnosis: A very sick patient, but nothing fatal.

And the prescription, declares Bullis, must be a continuous shot in the arm from America to pump into Europe food, hope, and the means to stabilize her currencies.

A dominant food industrialist from America's isolationist belt, Bullis is president of General Mills in Minneapolis. But he is no isolationist himself, nor is he a pessimist.

When the nation's food experts began analyzing the "war with bread" angles of the Truman doctrine last April, Bullis emphatically declared we must face the fact that we are in Europe for keeps, that we must pay the price for checking Russian expansion.

He is even more emphatic in that viewpoint after his six-week, first-hand study of England, Germany, Sweden, the Netherlands, Denmark, Belgium, France and Switzerland.

"Europe," he reports, "is like a person who has been very sick for a long time. But now she has begun to convalesce through natural forces—and doesn't realize it yet. She thinks she is really sicker than she is."

GERMANY BIG PROBLEM

Three things—food, hope, and stable currency—will "bring Europe back to international health," he declares. And the U.S. must provide them.

"The basic problem is between state-controlled enterprise and free enterprise on the American pattern," Bullis believes. "In other words, a battle between Communism and the American system. And it's some fight. We can't let Russia control Europe. To prevent it, we'll have to pay the price."

He found good reason for optimism in Britain, France, the Scandinavian countries, Belgium, and the Netherlands. Germany, he found, is our biggest international problem. It's going to take lots of time and money to get Germany on her industrial feet again, but the job must be done, Bullis declares.

"Otherwise," he warns, "Germany will pull the rest of Europe down with her."

"We'll have to let Germany manage her own economy in her own way. And we must help her get her coal mines in the Ruhr going. In my judgment, it would be unthinkable if the American Congress doesn't do something to get raw materials and food to Europe."

While Europe struggles back during what is going to be a long convalescence, "our job in America is to maintain a vigorous domestic economy," says Bullis. "We industrialists must keep our house in order. We must maintain a stable economy to keep the world, as well as ourselves, in health."

How can we inject Europe with hope as well as with food?

That's a State Department role, Bullis believes, to educate Europe on the good points of America's private enterprise system, to dramatize for them the high standard of living the U.S. system produces.

"Tell sick Europe what we, as Americans, have achieved," declares Bullis, "and they will look forward to a day of hope and well-being for themselves. We must stick by them, for our own sake, until they get their social and economic health back."

Harry A. Bullis: He's back from Europe, but still thinks the U.S. is there for keeps.

47-Story Hotel Of Glass, Costing $12,000,000, Planned

By JACK RUTLEDGE
DALLAS, Tex.—A 47-story hotel of glass, to be erected here at a cost of between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000, has been designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally famed architect, for Rogers Lacy, Texas oil man and financier.

Lacy estimates the possible start of construction at about two years from now. Under normal conditions, he said, completion of the building would require from 15 to 18 months after work begins.

Wright, who admittedly has no love for cities and skyscrapers, said his new type structure would be "a human habitation of harmonious unity."

"I have avoided making another store and office-building hotel of which the nation is too full already," he said.

STRONGER THAN CONCRETE
The architect said the construction of glass, magnesium and light stainless steel was as "simple as the branching of a tree from its trunk." Because of its lightness and design, he said, it would be stronger than reinforced concrete and there would be little or no vibration in the structure.

Further, it would be completely fireproof, with even the curtains and upholstery of spun-glass fabrics.

A seventh floor midway would contain barber shops, beauty shops, concessions, gift shops, lounging and writing shops.

Rooms would be reached through glassed-in sun galleries encircling a larger centre court that would include on the ground floor an irregularly shaped pool of water. These sun galleries, Wright said, would eliminate today's "tunnels of corridors."

Escalators would carry guests to the seventh floor.

A carport would carry weary and dusty cross-country travelers to their rooms without crossing the lobby. A storage space under the hotel would accommodate 1,500 automobiles. The roof garden would be covered with a transparent glass ceiling.

Skeleton of the hotel would be light steel in cantilevered construction, and the outer walls, a radical departure, would be diamond-shaped glass panes with an axis measuring five feet, six inches. The panes would consist of two cuts of plate glass with a quarter-inch plastic filling. This is a new development which Wright has tested for Texas hailstorms.

Each row of panes would project from two to four inches. This would afford an optical illusion as to the hotel's height and make the walls self-cleaning, without drip streaks from rain.

SELF-INSULATING

The panes are to be self-insulating against the weather, and translucent. In daytime they would cover each room with sufficient non-glare light to make electric lights unnecessary even for reading. Hinged windows would provide an outside view and additional ventilation.

All rooms are outside rooms, reached by interior sun galleries. Wright said the hotel would be thoroughly safe and lasting—so lasting, in fact, that "as for Rogers Lacy—his name will live to mark the place where Dallas once stood."

Wright designed the Imperial Hotel of Tokyo, still sturdy and in good condition after earthquakes and war. The Arizona Biltmore, accredited to a Wright student and follower, had his active participation in design. The San Marcos in the desert project for Chandler, Ariz., and the Crystal Heights development for Washington are described as historic if unbuilt plans of his.

The Indian-pipe lives on decaying vegetable matter from which it gets sufficient for its needs without requiring or possessing the manufactory we know as green leaves, and other related plants are similarly situated. Of a similar habit are the orchids of the coralroot group of which we have four species blooming from April to June.

One of them is prettier than the others, its flowers being pure white with purple spots. Corallorhiza multiflora. C. innata has unspotted white flowers. C. mertensiana has reddish flowers, and C. striata has its reddish flowers striped with dark veins. The popular name is derived from the coral-like appearance of the roots, by which they get nourishment from decaying matter; they have no green leaves.

STRANGE FEEDING WAYS

Quite different is the manner of feeding of the sundew of which one species is very common along the marshy edges of many of our lakes and muskegs. It possesses green leaves which with their stem and blade much resemble an old-fashioned horn mustard-plant.

The small plant is four or five inches high or less, and bears on slender stems minute white flowers. The leaves and particularly the round blades are covered with red hairs that bear small balls that exude a sticky juice that effectively traps small insects. From this animal prey the plant obtains its nitrogenous food, the hair bending over and enclosing the captive until all that is left of it is the useless scales, wings, etc.

Some years ago I kept a sundew plant in my room for several weeks and fed it with minute fragments of fresh meat. These were treated just as insects would have been, the indigestible parts being left after the juices were extracted.

In boggy land on our mountains another insect-eating plant is found, the common butterwort. It is particularly plentiful in a sloping bog near the Croteau camp on the Forbidden Plateau. It has blue flowers. Its leaves exude a peculiar slimy material which acts like a kind of natural "sticky flypaper" for unwary insects.

TRAPS OF BLADDERWORT

More curiously intricate are the traps of the bladderwort, another plant of the same family. It is found in water and is exceedingly common in the sloughs of the prairies. The leaves are threadlike, resembling the underwater ones of the water buttercup, and they bear small bladders, each supplied with a very remarkable trap-door valve

6-Footers Meet To Dramatize Plight; Getting Short End Of Things They Say

Low bridge: Doorways and dangling chandeliers are hazards in the social life of Hollywood's "Tip Top" club members. Betty Krueger (left) stands six feet, one, her partner, Don Stanton, is six feet, five. High man is Jack Stetson (right), who's six feet, eight and a half inches. The dark-haired shorty is Ginny Irwin, five feet, three and a half inches. Obviously not a club member.

By PATT WAITS

HOLLYWOOD—High society descended on Hollywood. Rubbernecks who were used to looking right or left for a glimpse that opens inwards to an insect visitor but effectively cuts off any possibility of escape.

Quite different from these plants in its peculiarity is the little common polypody or licorice-fern, well known to children and others because of its running root-stock with its flavor not unlike that of green licorice. It is sometimes called the "winter fern" because it springs into fresh verdancy with the coming of the rains in the fall. And one of the many very lovely sights in wild nature here is that of a slope of mossy rock alive with the young fronds of this small fern, or the trunk of an aged maple draped with the same living green. And this is a familiar thing by our hill roads and in the woods in autumn. But sometimes it comes at unusual times, and the other July day in Saanich I saw a long ledge of rock clad with the new-born fronds of this fern.

Sometimes of course a frost nips the autumnal frondage and probably this young Saanich growth will decline with the warmth and drought of late summer, but the licorice-fern has rhizomes or rootstocks that are full of latent life and can still await with patience the later and more continuous moisture that marks the approaching of winter as we have it on the coast.

at movie stars got cricks in their necks from looking up.

The "250" that came to Hollywood all were upwards of six feet tall. They were the toppers from the Tip Top clubs across the nation, here for their first national convention. They wanted to dramatize the plight of tall men and women who are forced to jackknife their extra inches into conventional size beds, who never can find ready-made clothes to fit them, who are always bumping into chandeliers and never have leg room in theatres.

There were Tip-Toppers from Miami, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Dallas, New Orleans and Philadelphia. Delegates came from Seattle's "Timberliners," Nebraska's "Stardusters," Cleveland's "Skyscrapers," New York's "Stratolliners," and "Seventy-two Inch-ers," San Francisco's "Golden Gaters," and the Kansas City, Kans., "Skyliners."

All the women were higher than six feet, the men at least six feet, four inches. Those who were married had tall mates; to marry "beneath you" is considered traitorous for tall people.

The Tip-Toppers compared their size 12 shoes with footprints in the cement in a theatre lobby here, danced head and shoulders above the crowds at filmland nightclubs and cut king-size capers in the surf at the beaches.

They crowded Hollywood movies so movie moguls could see what trouble jammed-together seats cause and staged a Hollywood fashion show—the models were all over six feet—so dress designers could see what alterations a conventional dress or suit needs to cover adequately a six-foot frame.

When they finally wound up their first convention, climbed back into their too-short railroad berths and headed home again, the Tip Toppers hoped the nation's manufacturers and designers were properly impressed—and would do something about it, quickly.

FATE

By LOIS WHITELY

Peggy Danford didn't find out that she loved Roger Linsley until she had refused him and he had departed for a canoe trip in the Canadian wilds, leaving no address behind him. Which seems rather stupid of her.

As a matter of fact, Peggy's "No" had been tentative rather than final and no one was more surprised than she when it was accepted as final.

So here she was now, this beautiful morning in late September, dashing down the stairs at the postman's ring in the hope that at last some word from Roger might be waiting her.

But there was none.

"Looks like your ticket applications, Bill."

"Righto. Well—we'll take in the big game, anyhow."

Now disappointment in love affects the female sex in various ways. Some fly to desperate flirtations with other men; others withdraw into moody seclusion shunning contact with the world until recovered.

Peggy did neither, but, as she moved about on her usual round of pleasure, she found a strange reaction taking place within her. Love for Roger began to turn into positive hate. Peggy came to crave a meeting that she might show him how little she thought of him.

November arrived with its colorful pageant of autumn foliage. And with it came memorable Saturday afternoons when stalwart eleveners waged their hectic battles before the cheering multitudes.

Peggy and Bill were in their seats for the big game. Soon the seats all around them were filled. But one on Peggy's right remained empty until the game had started.

She subconsciously knew someone had taken the empty place, felt the presence of another, but so wrapped up was she in the exciting game that she paid no attention to her neighbor.

During the intermission when the cheering was thunderous, Peggy's eyes blazing with excitement of the game and the November breeze, turned quickly—and looked straight into the familiar once-loved grey eyes of Roger Linsley.

There was a moment of utter silence between them, none the less intense for the thunderous cheer around them.

Then: "Imagine an explorer at a football game!" Peggy's heart was doing strange things and she was going to make it behave if she had to be downright nasty to Roger.

"You remember Bill?" she asked, as Roger remained silent. But when she turned her brother had disappeared.

"Oh, yes—Bill!" Roger stared at the empty space. "Must have shrunk—I really—don't see him."

Peggy flushed. That was the trouble with Roger. He thought he had a sense of humor.

"He was here a moment ago."

She turned to scan the crowd.

"I really must see Bill. He was so interested in my trip. You know when I wrote him about the fishing he said he wanted to make just such a trip some day."

Peggy stared at him. "You—wrote—Bill?"

But Roger was suddenly talking steadily, tenderly.

"See here, Peggy darling."

That trip was planned just to give me a chance to think things out. You see, I had been trying for two years to the best of my ability to earn your love. I failed.

I had a faint hope that absence might prove more my advocate than my presence evidently had.

I had had it out with Bill. It seemed there was a chap—some one named Burton or Barton—who seemed to be the favored one. Bill was quite sympathetic, but he didn't think I had a chance.

He thought my trip a splendid idea—for my own good—if nothing more. I'm leaving tonight. I still love you too much to enjoy seeing you with someone else. Strange," he added with the whimsical smile that did strange things to Peggy, "that we should be seated together!"

Peggy caught her breath. This was fate. She forgot all the nasty things she had planned to say. All the cutting remarks that had been piling up for weeks.

"You can't—you wouldn't have gone without seeing me?" There were tears in Peggy's eyes.

"Bill told me you were so happy and gay, that you couldn't have missed me," Roger said.

"Girls don't wear their hearts on their sleeves any more," Peggy stormed. Stupid Bill!

"Do you mean—that you care?" Roger was holding her hand tight.

Hanging over the fence, Bill grumbled. "And I gave up a day getting that seat for Roger—at least a week making certain he would return in time for the game—spent $10 in bribes to see that he got here, lie to 'em both—and then don't dare return to

WORM-EATER

By VIVIAN HAYES

From the moment Lucia Furbush married Allan Cartright, Allan had made a determined effort to induce Lucia to "live down" the Furbushes, and "live up" to the Cartrights. Not but what the Furbushes were nice enough people, but they were a red-blooded lot, and the Cartright blood was a very high-test indigo.

Lucia went Cartright to a gratifying extent, but at the birth of her son she reverted to Furbush long enough to insist upon the baby's being christened John Furbush, Jr., thus perpetuating the name of his maternal grandfather.

When Allan Cartright died a few years later, folks remarked that it was a mercy he was taken before he'd had a chance to run through all the money Lucia's pa had left her. They added that it was a pity she hadn't married Jack Ward, instead—and opined that Lucia thought so, too.

"Oh, dear," sighed Mrs. Tucker, an old neighbor, "to think that Lucia's uncle Dan Furbush is a rich man, too. If only he and Lucia's pa hadn't had that silly quarrel. John Furbush called Dan a worm for being talked into buying a goldmine, and Dan says to John: 'I'll never forgive you 'til you eat your words! I'm going to make a fortune out of that mine' he says."

He wrote five years later, just before Lucia's pa died, and he says: "Well, John, there really was gold in that hole in the ground, and I'm ready to pass you a few nuggets when you write me you're ready to eat that worm. P.S. I call my mine the Wormine."

"No sign of an address, and the post-mark so blurred no one could make it out. Lucia's pa allowed Dan had left out the address a-purpose to see if his brother would trace him from the post-mark. He never wrote again, and here's Lucia, a widow, with precious little cash, yet havin' to keep up appearances, as befitting a Cartright. Wish Dan could see how much John Jr., resembles him—the spittin' image!"

The "spittin' image" was at that moment sprawled sullenly across the ancestral door steps.

"Aw, ma," he wailed, "I tell ya I gotta be in the circus over at Simpy's barn. I'm one of the freaks. They can't give no side-show without me. I gotta—"

"That will do," interrupted the departing Mrs. Cartright with finality, "remember, you are not to leave the yard."

Upon her return late that afternoon, Mrs. Cartright became conscious of a raucous voice in the side yard.

A clothesline had been strung across the yard. From it fluttered lurid sideshow banners.

Upon a shaky "bally-ho" stand, Simpy, in his father's tuxedo, was proclaiming through a megaphone, "Step up closer, lay-deez and gentulmun."

In addition, to the children the free show had attracted one grown-up, a big, bronzed man, who leaned against an apple tree, grinning broadly.

"Now, lay-deez and gentulmun," intoned Simpy, "I will next introduce to your NO-tice, Perfessor Tattosky, the celebrated tattooed worm-eater from the wild jungles of the Amazon RIV-ah-Tubby, quit leanin' against this platform—Perfessor Tattosky, lay-deez and gentulmun, eats nothing but WORMS—writhing, twisting, squirming WORMS! And t prove it to you, lay-deez and gentulmun, Perfessor Tattosky will post-TIVEly perform for your amusement."

A loin-clothed figure scrambled onto the stage. His blackened body was lavishly adorned with vivid splashes of paint. Chanting an incantation the "perfessor" threw back the lid of a lacquer jewel box.

The black fingers drew out a long, twisting worm. The Amazonian tilted back his head, opened his mouth and before his audience's very eyes, did, all too truly, swallow it!

Simultaneously life returned to Mrs. Cartright's palsied limbs. Screaming, she ran toward the platform. It collapsed with a crash.

A strong hand gripped her shoulder.

"Keep your shirt on, Lucia," chuckled the big man, kissing her squarely on the mouth. "A nice way to greet your Uncle Dan! Well, Lucia, I said John Furbush ain't done it! The sins of the grandfathers, eh, Lucia? Ho! That kid's a real boy, thank the Lord. Shake, pardner! How'd you and your ma like to make me a visit out to my ranch?"

That night a familiar cat-call summoned Simpy to his bedroom window.

"He, Simpy," called a guarded voice, "you c'n spend the rest of vacation with me on my Uncle Dan's ranch if ya folks will let ya."

"Say, Simpy," the voice became a cautious whisper, "dohn't ever tell my Uncle Dan that the worm I ate was only a stretched out piece of chocolate caramel."

MAN OF SUBSTANCE

By WARREN A. REEDER

John Hardner stopped at the door of Kane and Lord's offices and bade the night watchman a calm goodnight, which had been his unvarying routine for the past 24 years.

Then he stepped over the threshold of the doorway for the last time. Kane and Lord were losing a trusted cashier.

And they were also losing $70,000 in cold cash.

In the small room he had rented only that morning he started to transform his appearance with deft sure movements. In a half hour he stepped back from the mirror and viewed himself with satisfaction. His iron-grey hair was now a dark brown, parted on the side instead of the centre. The Van Dyke beard he had cultivated so carefully for the past five years was gone and he was clean shaven. Altogether he looked 15 years younger.

In the small restaurant in the warehouse district he deliberately ate a large meal. When he finished it was quite dark.

Paying for his meal, he picked up the suitcase and walked out slowly. Then he started to hurry through dimly lighted streets and alleys until he came to the spot he had selected a long while before. It was in the shadow of a huge warehouse at the river's edge.

Swiftly he divested himself of his outer suit and donned an extra one from his suitcase. He changed his shoes.

Then he gathered together his discarded clothing. The pants, shoes and shirt he tied together in one bundle, weighted it down with small pieces of lead and dropped it over the pier into the dark gurgling waters of the river.

The coat and hat he laid on the pier. In the pocket of the coat he placed a note. It read:

"I cannot stand the disgrace of my seat because they'll both think me responsible for their past unhappiness."

But he might just as well have returned. For neither Peggy nor Roger would have known he was there—as they were unaware that the teams had come in quite some time ago.

being convicted for embezzlement. This is the end."

The next morning he casually perused his paper as he ate breakfast. The screaming headlines amused him:

TRUSTED CASHIER SUICIDE!

Carefully he read the account. The police were dragging the river but did not expect to find the body because of the swift currents and treacherous tides.

What to do with the money was a problem. After long deliberation he decided to place it in a safe deposit box. He selected one in a quiet suburban bank and stored all of it away except a few hundred dollars for immediate use.

John Hardner's wants were few. He lived comfortably but avoided the bright lights. His one vice was playing the horses.

In the latter part of the summer he took a long trip up into the north woods. He did not especially enjoy himself but he felt that it was a gesture his position demanded.

At the end of six weeks John Hardner came back to civilization feeling more physically fit than he had for years.

His first thought was of his stored wealth. He climbed into a cab and ordered his driver to take him to the bank. When the driver drew up in front of it John Hardner stared at the building curiously. At one side of the bank a group of workmen were busy bricking up a hole in the wall. His heart commenced to throb alarmingly.

"What happened there?" he asked the driver. "An accident?"

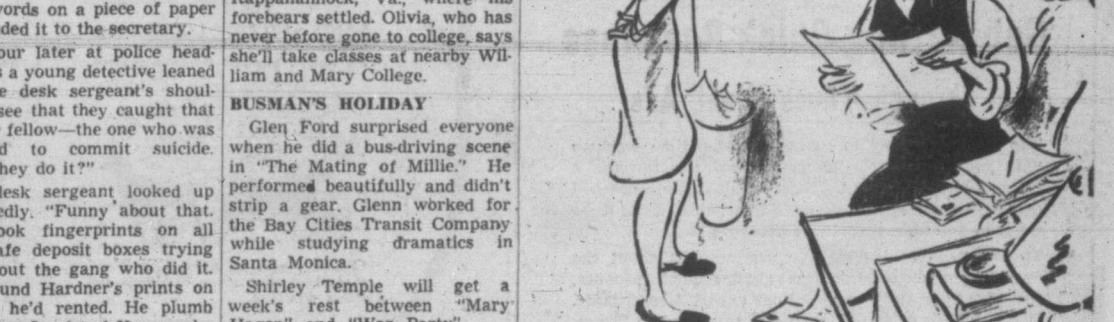

The driver stared. "Ain't you heard? That's where that gang broke into the safety deposit boxes about five weeks ago. They got everything—!" Suddenly the driver realized that he was talking to empty air.

John Hardner rushed into the bank president's office. "My money," he gasped hoarsely. "I want my money!"

"Here—take a seat, my man," the president advised kindly. He motioned him to a chair. "I suppose you mean the safe-deposit boxes?"

John Hardner nodded, still
